By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—President Roosevelt was officially notified today of the recent action of the Georgia state Democratic executive committee in naming a slate of delegates to the forthcoming Democratic national convention pledged to his re-nomination.

Calling at the White House for that purpose, Governor Rivers, Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, and James L. Gillis, chairman of the state Democratic committee, presented the President with a copy of the resolutions adopted by the committee urging his re-nomination and re-election.

The resolutions were signed by all 72 of the Georgians who have been selected as delegates and alternates to the national convention.

Major Howell, who will be chairman of the Georgia national convention delegation, said the President gave a "metaphorical receipt" for the resolutions, but left unbroken the silence he has thus far maintained on the much-controverted third-term issue.

Rivers Speaks.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Governor Rivers explained after the White House conference that he, Major Howell and State Chairman Gillis had been designated as a committee to wait on the chief executive and officially inform him of the state's support.

"We come here primarily to present Mr. Roosevelt with formal copies of the resolutions, as directed by the state committee," Governor Rivers said. "Georgia is overwhelmingly for the President's re-election—from 10 to 20 to one, I should say. The delegates selected to go to the Chicago national convention are representative of all factions in Georgia."

Governor Rivers joined with Major Howell and Chairman Gillis in telling newspaper men at the White House that Georgia was prepared to do anything within its power to advance the President's re-nomination and re-election.

Hope To Set Example.
"We do not intend to launch a campaign that might be construed as interfering with the pre-convention affairs of other states," Rivers added, "but by our action we hope to set an example for the others to follow. Georgia is for a Roosevelt third term."

While at the White House, Governor Rivers also discussed with the President plans for having him attend the formal dedication of the new state hospital, now nearing completion at Milledgeville. Mr. Roosevelt expressed the hope that an opportunity to do so would present itself.

Later in the afternoon, Governor Rivers, Major Howell, Chairman Gillis and Ivan Allen Jr., secretary of the State Hospital Authority, went to the capitol for an informal conference with the Georgia delegation in congress. Representative Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the state group, arranged for the delegation to meet with the visiting Georgians in the offices of Speaker of the House Bankhead, just off the house chamber.

Governor Rivers and Mr. Allen returned to Atlanta tonight, while Major Howell and Chairman Gillis planned to remain over until tomorrow.

WANTS AUDIT — W. L. Miller, highway board chairman, who yesterday asked Zach Arnold, state auditor, for an audit of the highway department funds since December 1 when he was ousted by Governor Rivers.

Jury Indicts
Four More Men
In GainesvilleAction Follows Acquittal of Whelchel on Conspiracy Charges.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 8.—On the heels of the acquittal of Congressman B. Frank Whelchel on two indictments of conspiracy to sell postal appointments, the federal grand jury of the Gainesville division today indicted four north Georgians on charges of soliciting or offering money for procurement of postal appointments.

They are:

Harry Graves, publisher of the Tri-County Advertiser, of Clarksville, Ga.

J. H. Holcomb Sr., commissioner of Cherokee county.

Hulon Holcomb, son of J. H. Holcomb Sr., a rural letter carrier of Ball Ground.

Paul Grogan, rural letter carrier of Ball Ground.

The latter three were alleged to be involved in the charges of which Congressman Whelchel was acquitted.

The indictment against Graves alleges that in return for his influence he solicited $800 in June, 1939, from L. A. Mauldin, postmaster at Clarksville, in addition to $18.50 per month as long as Graves' daughter, Elizabeth, held a position as clerk in that post office. The appointment, the indictment says, was obtained through Congressman Whelchel, and Whelchel was not indicted or otherwise involved in the case. It was charged Miss Graves was to receive $18.50 a month in addition to the regular annual salary of $1,100 as postal clerk.

The indictments of the two Holcombs and Grogan are repercussions of the charges against Congressman Whelchel and alleged they promised to pay money to Congressman Whelchel and H. Grady Jones, commissioner of Pickens county, for appointments.

The grand jury was adjourned by Judge Underwood subject to call.

L. B. Schwartz, special assistant attorney general, presented the case to the grand jury, and left immediately for Washington. He said he would return to Georgia shortly.

Temperatures Plunge
Below 50 in Lakes Area
By The Associated Press.
Abnormally high temperatures gave a foretaste of summer to the southeastern states yesterday while the mercury fell below 50 in much of the Great Lakes area, where cloudiness prevailed.
Fair weather extended along the Atlantic seaboard to mid-New England. Thunderstorms rumbled over Maine, and scattered sections from Texas to the upper Mississippi valley.Miller Asks
Special Audit
Of Road BooksArnold Refuses Request;
Chairman Criticizes
Arnall's Ruling.

W. L. Miller, highway board chairman, yesterday asked State Auditor Zach Arnold for a special audit of the highway department covering the four months' period he was out of office. It was refused.

Miller made the request after he had returned from a visit to south Georgia to find the affairs of the highway department being operated by the Rivers-controlled majority of the board under a ruling from Attorney General Ellis Arnall.

Charges 'Evasion.'

Miller charged that the ruling of Arnall, who held that the votes of the other two members of the board, Lawson L. Patten and Herman H. Watson, could control the affairs of the department "defeats by evasion the very clear intent of the supreme court." He was referring to opinions of the supreme court which restored him to office following his ouster by Governor Rivers last December.

The board chairman asked Arnold for a special audit of "requisitions, purchases and disbursements" made by the department since December, saying that he sought "information which otherwise I have been unable to get." Arnold informed Miller during the day that he does not have the examiners available for the immediate audit, pointing out that the annual audit of the department will be made immediately after July 1.

Records Available.

Arnold informed Miller that he had conferred with Commissioners Patten and Watson, both of whom assured him that "all of the records of requisitions, purchases and disbursements are available to you," and promising to make them available to Miller if he cannot get them from within the department.

Arnall declined comment on Miller's statement, which was accompanied by a letter not made public, except to say he "considers the department of law a branch of the judiciary" and adding that he "will not engage in a political argument with anyone."

Arnall told the chairman that if he has any "suspicion of fraud in the highway department" he would call his examiners off the road immediately and begin an audit of the department at once.

Avalds Word.

"I would like to hear from you further on this request," Arnall told the chairman.

It developed during the discussions over Arnall's ruling that Miller had asked for a copy of an opinion which he said Arnall issued some time last year. In his reply, Arnall said he had been unable to determine from the Miller letter just what opinion the chairman wanted but promised to furnish him whatever he desires as soon as he makes known his specific wants.

Swamp Killer Brought to Book
With Dynamite and Dredging

By HAROLD MARTIN.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., May 8.—The Stanley swamp murderer has been brought to book at last. The relentless assassin who for a hundred years has been preying on folks in this section has been tried, convicted, and the execution of all his myriad breed is going forward to the boom of dynamite and the snort and puff of heavy dredging buckets.

Within another month or so the folks who live along the steaming marsh where he has made his home can boast that they live in one of the healthiest sections in Georgia.

They couldn't do that before. Ever since the white man came to chase the Indians out, the people who tried to make their homes be-

Netherlands Closes Airport to Nazis
As Germany Calls More ReservistsBerlin, Paris
Say Holland Is Not ThreatenedPeople Are Assured
Military Operations
Only Precautionary.

By The United Press.

AMSTERDAM, May 8.—Holland's land, sea and air forces were prepared tonight to resist any invasion despite new assurances from European belligerents that the nation was in no immediate danger.

A check of the provinces showed all was quiet and both Berlin and Paris spokesmen took the position that there seemed to be no threat at present to the Low Countries.

The country was still tense and somewhat nervous, however, as a result of the sudden military measures—more stringent than any since the World War.

(Amsterdam's airport at Schiphol will be closed to foreign planes beginning Friday, it was announced tonight, according to the Associated Press. At present German planes are the only foreign aircraft landing at Schiphol. Another airport will be made available for German commercial aircraft at Eelde, near Groningen in extreme northwestern Netherlands. German planes thus will be permitted to fly only a few miles into Dutch territory.)

Strong detachments of soldiers guarded all public buildings in principal towns throughout the country.

Leaves of all men of the fighting forces were cancelled. Members of anti-aircraft units and searchlight batteries, who had been released to work in war production factories, were recalled to military duty. Key rivers and canals were prepared to strike Dutch and ships in them were ordered to remain where they were.

(In Berlin, official Nazi quarters, in the face of general European uneasiness, assured all inquirers that Germany is prepared to strike decisively wherever and whenever her enemies aim a blow, the Associated Press said. Coupled with these verbal declarations went wholesale summonses to the colors for Germans apparently of all ages. Cases of reservists over 50 years of age were noticed.)

Reports from Belgium said that everything was quiet in that country, Holland's neighbor on the German frontier.

The report that everything was quiet in Belgium caused the Dutch public, aware of foreign rumors that an attack on Holland might come at any hour, to accept the statement that their government's extraordinary military measures were precautionary.

Foreign telephone calls were resumed at 8 o'clock today after the night-long suspension during which military authorities forbade calls from Holland and permitted only a few calls into Holland. In these calls listeners at this end were not permitted to speak.

READY FOR NAZIS—These somber-faced Dutch marine infantrymen are drawn up in company formation, as the Netherlands army prepares for any invasion by Germany's gray-green hordes. Reports current yesterday said the nation was not in any immediate danger. However, the Dutch were still tense.

Active Course,
Observers SaySecrecy Marks Maneuvering on Pacific and Vatican Fronts.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(UP)—Official secrecy tonight continued to shroud President Roosevelt's diplomatic maneuvering in connection with the European war but veteran observers were convinced he is charting a sensational course.

He appeared to be moving on at least two fronts—in the Pacific where the United States fleet has been ordered to remain indefinitely, and through Rome, probably in conjunction with the Vatican in the hope of keeping Italy out of the war.

The White House and Secretary of State Cordell Hull denied any special significance in the fleet order but it was recalled that three weeks ago Hull curtly informed Japan that the United States would not countenance any change in the status quo of the Dutch East Indies.

The President, while unusually secretive, has made no effort to conceal his increasing concern. His "case of nerves," as he described it, appeared to have spread to Hull and his chief adviser, Undersecretary Sumner Welles. The latter is heading a continuous path to the White House and is holding interim discussions with worried envoys from the Balkan countries.

Probably most significant of Mr. Roosevelt's activities are his frequent conferences with veteran foreign affairs experts such as former Republican Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, and James W. Gerard, World War ambassador to Berlin.

New Drug Given To Rabies Patient

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8.—(AP)—With hope all but abandoned, doctors resorted to the new drug sulphydryde here today in the treatment of rabies.

They said that as far as they knew it was the first such use of the drug. First effects gave them no encouragement.

The patient was Hailey Jones, 11, of Heth, Ark. The child's illness, doctors think, is due to the scratch of a cat that clawed him as he picked it up to see if it was hurt after it fell from a tree.

Belligerent CIO Leader
Ejected on Dies' Order

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—A belligerent CIO leader was ejected from a turbulent Dies committee hearing today after accusing the committee of "trying to bring on war." He arranged to testify later, however, after a move to cite him for contempt failed. The witness, Michael J. Quill, of New York, president of the CIO Transport Workers' Union, defying the committee to put him in jail, was shoved out of the hearing room by three capitol policemen under orders of Chairman Dies, Democrat, Texas.

Cotton Goods Stamps
Worth $1,554 Given Out

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8.—(AP)—The federal government's stamp plan for cutting into the cotton surplus and at the same time supplying cotton goods to the needy resulted in the distribution of $1,554 of stamps to WPA families its first day of operation, authorities announced today.

This amount of stamps went yesterday to 202 families, who paid $777 for green cotton stamps and received free a like sum in brown stamps. The stamps can be swapped for cotton goods at drygoods stores participating in the plan.

Yugoslav Army
To Hold Talks
With RussiansDiplomats See Distinct Possibility of Allied-
Moscow Co-operation.

BUDAPEST, May 9.—(AP)—It was learned authoritatively early today that a Yugoslav military mission board headed by General Vojin Maximovic, inspector of the national defense, will leave Belgrade shortly for Moscow to hold military talks with Soviet Russian officials.

Authoritative sources in Belgrade made this disclosure shortly after it was reported in diplomatic quarters that Britain and France were offering Yugoslavs the assistance of troops, air forces and naval forces and a guarantee of Yugoslav independence and territorial integrity in an effort to seal a Balkan alliance against German or Italian aggression in southeastern Europe.

Diplomatic quarters in the Balkans, noting the parallel between the Yugoslav-Russian talks and the Allied offer of aid, said there was a distinct possibility of Allied-Russian co-operation in southeastern Europe.

In recent weeks both Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, Slavic nations, have been showing an inclination to lean toward the big Slav nation, Russia, for support, rather than to the western powers.

The belief was expressed in quarters close to the Yugoslav government that a Yugoslav-Soviet military alliance might result from the military mission's journey to Moscow.

Shouts of 'Go!
Are Hurled at
Prime MinisterMargin Is Slimmest
Ever Given on Major Issue.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, May 8.—Neville Chamberlain remained the master of Britain's war government by the narrow margin of 81 votes tonight after beating off for the moment the thunder of criticism which in two days of historic house of commons debate had threatened his ministry for its surrender in central and southern Norway.

(The majority of 81 was the lowest a national government has ever obtained on a major issue, the United Press said.)

The government carried a vote on a question of confidence at conclusion of First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill's calm, firm, almost deprecatory speech, by 281 Tory votes to 200 for the combined opposition.

Lack Majority.

The Conservatives' position was clouded, however, by the 134 absentees or abstentions, who, with those voting in opposition, make a majority of the 615 members. The British Press Association said 130 of these were absentees.

Moreover, an estimated 40 members who normally are government supporters, voted with the opposition.

The vote contrasted with the government's 292-129 victory on the first of five war-time motions of censure. That was on the question of restricting the sale of Palestine land to Jews, however, and did not represent in any way the test of today's ballot.

Some political observers speculated on whether the 71-year-old prime minister, chastened by the unexpectedly large opposition vote, might follow the example of the former premier of France, Edouard Daladier, and resign. There was nothing, however, to confirm any such intention.

Opposition Jubilant.

Men who had hammered at the government for two days took the vote as a victory rather than as a defeat. Jubilantly they sang, "Rule Britannia," and shouted "go resign!" as the gaunt Chamberlain left the house.

Should the man who led Britain to Munich and then to war to destroy "Hitlerism," actually go to the king to resign, his most likely successor would be Churchill or Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, possibly at the head of a government of all parties.

But the political situation was in a great state of uncertainty.

One possibility, however, was that Chamberlain would now attempt to form a national government of all parties, inviting labor and liberals to take portfolios in his cabinet.

Labor May Change.

The labor party convention on Monday may decide to reverse its decision not to participate in the government.

It was evident the opposition expects Chamberlain—a picture of weariness at the end of the seven-hour tumult—at least to reconstruct his cabinet to satisfy their scornful condemnations of "muddling."

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer; Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister; Oliver Stanley, secretary for war, and Leslie Burgin, supply minister, were members mentioned as likely to go.

Playing the trump card of the imperiled Chamberlain government, Churchill admitted frankly

Up to 90, Cloudy Today's Forecast

Increasing cloudiness and continued warm weather have been forecast for Atlanta today.

Skies will be overcast the greater part of the next 12 hours, the Weather Bureau reported, with summer showers possible for tomorrow.

In spite of the clouds the thermometer is expected to rise as high as yesterday when 90 was reached for the first time since last summer. The high at the airport yesterday was 94.

Can't Find 12th Juror, Defense Agrees to 11

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—(AP)—A Federal Housing Authority expropriation case was ready to go to trial here when the court found a juror was deaf. Judge Hugh C. Cage sent Court Crier Robert Kreutz out to find a substitute. After a long absence Kreutz returned and said he had stopped 57 men on historic old Royal street, outside the courthouse, but found only one property owner—and that one was on his way to a doctor. Impatient, the defense agreed to trial before the incomplete jury.

Flower Show Makes an Eden Of Auditorium

3,800 Garden Lovers See Display in Exhibit's First Tour.

A flower garden-of-Eden blossomed yesterday, where only the bleak bare walls of the municipal auditorium stood before.

Every variety of bloom in Atlanta's abundant May gardens had been transplanted to make a garden showplace of the spacious auditorium, as the fifth annual Atlanta Flower Show opened. Every shade in the rainbow, and many more developed through careful horticulture, were blended with transplanted boxwood, pine trees and magnolias to make a breath-taking floral exhibit. Only the babbling brook was missing.

Early Judging.
Judging began early in the morning, and was completed before any spectators were admitted into the auditorium. Approximately 3,800 flower lovers, mostly women in the latest spring fashions for the fashionable garden, viewed the exhibits during the first hour of the show.

The judges said they saw the finest blooms ever shown here yesterday, and that the excessive snows of the past winter were responsible for the fine texture of the flowers because large quantities of nitrogen were returned to the soil.

The Robinson trophy, awarded annually to the club scoring the highest number of first places in the show, was awarded the Piedmont Garden Club, with a total of 39 points.

The Dunlap trophy to the individual sweepstakes winner was awarded Mrs. Phinixy Calhoun, of the Peachtree Garden Club. It was in the specimen class that individuals were chiefly interested. This was open to any Georgia flower grower, garden club member or not.

Award of Merit.
Mrs. Andrew Prather, of Columbus, had an outstanding exhibit of roses, winning nine awards and causing the judges to present her with a special gold award of merit because of her outstanding collection of Eclipse roses.

She and her husband arose at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and motored to Atlanta with their fresh-cut flowers so as to have them "just right" for the judging. The Boxwood Garden Club, youngest exhibiting club and having the youngest members, won the top club prize of the show, being awarded first place in the herbaceous border exhibit, one which necessitates the arrangement of flowers to give a succession of blooms.

Dark blue iris, fox glove, regal lilies and peonies were the principal flowers used.

In this competition, second place went to the Cherokee Garden Club and third place to the Peachtree Garden Club.

The flower show will continue today.

A complete tabulation of winners follows:

proposal is needed to place the stamp plan in operation.

U. S. Notified.
Henry B. Mays, county welfare director, immediately notified federal officials of the commission's action and urged that they send a representative here to complete final arrangements.

James Allen, of Dallas, Texas, regional director of the stamp plan program, is familiar with the Fulton county program and according to both Mays and Commissioner L. Glover Hailey has promised approval of the program here when the revolving fund is made available.

Those benefiting under the stamp plan will be WPA workers, social security clients (old age pension recipients, dependent children and the blind) and direct relief clients.

WPA workers who purchase $1 worth of orange stamps will be given 50 cents' worth of blue stamps free, provided they purchase a minimum of $1 worth per week for each member of the family.

Social security clients will receive stamps on the same basis as WPA workers provided that they do not exceed one-half of their monthly cash allowance.

Direct relief persons and those waiting WPA assignment will be given free blue stamps at the rate of 50 cents per week per person in each family. These persons will not be required to purchase orange stamps.

The stamps are spendable at any grocery or dairy or bakery for food for human consumption. There are no restrictions on what you can purchase with orange stamps—except that it must be food for human consumption.

Blue stamps can be used to purchase only food products which the secretary of agriculture classes as surplus commodities.

Mays said adoption of the stamp plan here will eliminate operation of the surplus commodities warehouse except for the distribution of clothing.

Republicans of Fifth District to Name Delegate

Meeting Will Be Held at Fulton Courthouse
Tomorrow.

The fifth congressional district's one delegate to the Republican national convention will be selected at the district convention at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Fulton courthouse.

A contest is expected between a slate of delegates from Fulton county named in the county convention April 27, at which Clint Hager was elected chairman, and a group declared by County Chairman H. H. Turner to have been selected at another meeting.

Since Fulton's 17 delegates to the district convention outnumber DeKalb's seven and Rockdale's one, it was pointed out that on the result of this contest would rest the identity of the district's delegate to the national convention.

A. L. Bailey, a figure in the campaign of J. J. Mangham, of Bremen, against Governor Rivers for re-election, was in Atlanta yesterday and conferred with Turner. Neither could be reached for comment.

Georgia will have 14 delegates at the national convention, one from each of the 10 congressional districts and four from the state at large. Those selected thus far, and their districts, are: Charles Jordan, Glenwood, first; J. L. Phillips, Thomasville, second; J. H. Crumney, Rochelle, third; Herbert Block, Macon, sixth, and J. H. Bush, Lumber City, seventh.

The seventh and ninth districts also will hold conventions tomorrow at Rome and Canton, respectively.

Postmaster Nominations Are Submitted to Senate

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The President sent to the senate today these postmaster nominations for Georgia:

Milledgeville, Benjamin E. Harrison; Brooklet, Ruth Parrish; Cartersville, Joseph C. Nelson; Emory University, Leon Delos Miller.

THIRD-TERM BACKERS—President Roosevelt received a formal pledge of 24 Georgia votes yesterday for his renomination at the Democratic national convention, when party leaders from Georgia gave him a copy of a resolution adopted by the Georgia Democratic executive committee pledging their support. Left to right, Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution and chairman of the Georgia delegation to the Chicago convention; Governor Rivers and James L. Gillis, chairman of the state committee. (Story on Page 1.)

Peanuts Thrive During Recent State Weather

Report Shows Cotton,
Wheat, Truck Crops
Are Retarded.

Last week's weather was favorable for pastures, cane and peanuts, though the first half of the week was too cold for cotton, wheat, tobacco and some truck crops, the United States Weather Bureau reported yesterday.

Cotton was "greatly retarded, with several replantings necessary." Before warm weather set in, the bureau had several complaints of seed rotting in the ground.

Central and southern counties reported good stands of corn, while some sections announced "fairly good growth" of the tobacco crop.

The late April freeze was less damaging to fruit crops than previously indicated, the weekly summary said. Fort Valley reported good prospects for a fair crop, though nearly all the peaches in the Concord area were killed.

Warm weather of the past few days resulted in good growth for oats, Irish and sweet potatoes, though generally speaking, farm work and vegetation growth still lagged.

Library Displays U. S. Art Collection

A collection of original exhibits and lithographs on loan from the Associated American Artists of New York will be on exhibit at the Carnegie library until June 1.

Thomas Benton, Peggy Bacon, Grant Wood, William Gropper and John Costigan are represented in the collection.

The exhibition is part of an educational program created five years ago by 24 American artists to increase nation-wide interest in the ownership of fine originals. The public is cordially invited to view the collection.

Train Crew Rescues Boy Trapped on Tracks

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., May 8.—(AP)—Ten-year-old Jimmy Dougherty knows now how the heroine in the melodrama feels when the train roars down the track on which the villain has her tied.

Only in this instance it was the train crew who stopped the engine before it struck Jimmy, whose foot became caught in a "frog" while crossing the track.

Judge Holds Women Don't Have to Bear Arms

FARGO, N. D., May 8.—(AP)—Judge M. J. Engler decided the government didn't have women in mind when it included in a citizenship oath a pledge to bear arms for one's country, so Martha May Rude had her papers today.

When she refused to swear to that part of the oath, a naturalization examiner objected, but the court overruled him. She said she'd nurse or drive an ambulance, but she didn't believe she could carry a rifle or machine gun.

Fulton Authorizes Study of Market

At the request of Philip Weltner, general counsel for the Atlanta Housing Authority, the Fulton county commissioners yesterday authorized a thorough study of the proposal to locate a central market here.

A committee composed of Chairman Ed L. Almand, commissioner Troy Chastain, County Agent Sid Truitt and one other person will make the investigation and it is expected that they will visit similar markets in Buffalo, N. Y., Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan.

Webb Miller, War Reporter, Is Found Dead

Body of United Press Ace Discovered Beside London Track.

LONDON, May 8.—(UP)—Webb Miller, famous United Press war reporter, was found dead today beside a railroad track in southwest London.

He had covered Prime Minister Chamberlain's historic statement in common on the British withdrawal from Norway yesterday, and it was presumed he fell from a suburban train sometime after 9 o'clock last night while on his way to the country for a night's rest before returning for today's session of commons.

Police said they believed Miller planned to change trains at Clapham junction, and stepped off the coach in the London blackout, thinking he was near the platform.

An engineer on the first daylight train this morning saw the body, and railroad police took it to Battersea mortuary.

Miller was only 48 years old, but in his newspaper career had been crowded more excitement and adventure than the average man can hope for in a life of three score and ten.

He watched war change from Pershing's cavalry maneuvers on the border in pursuit of Pancho Villa into the mechanized blitzkrieg that makes today's headlines.

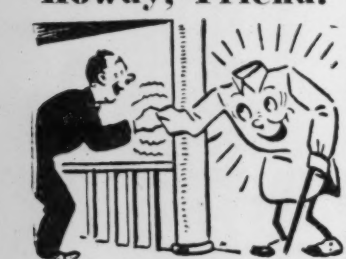

In addition to being a top-flight international reporter he was general European manager of the United Press.

Dunaway Gardens Mecca for Many

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. NEWMAN, Ga., May 8.—With iris and other seasonal flowers in full bloom, Hettie Jane Dunaway Gardens, six miles north of here on the Roosevelt highway, are now a mecca for scores of garden lovers daily, its owners report.

The gardens, on the Wayne P. Sewell estate, are fed by seven springs. Points of special interest to visitors include what is termed the largest natural rock garden in the south, its garden totem pole, Patchwork Barn (Little Theater), Blue Bonnet lodge, Windy Hill, "Shangri-La," the amphitheater, the "Wishing Well" and "Little Italy."

Johnson, program; George D. Newton, public affairs, and W. J. Shiver, fellowship.

Murder Syndicate Trial Opens in N.Y.

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—Two gangsters in Broadway-blue suits, the first accused members of Brooklyn's cut-rate murder syndicate to face a jury, went to trial today for the assassination three years ago of George Rudnick, a minor hoodlum known justly or not as a stool pigeon.

At the start there were three defendants, but in an unexpected and unexplained move by the prosecution—which suggested there might be more turning of state's evidence than already had occurred—Harry (Pittsburgh Phil) Strauss got a severance of his case. Thus, Harry (Happy) Malone and Frank (The Dasher) Abbandando were left in the dock. Both looked on placidly as the selection of a jury got under way in a Brooklyn courtroom which was under the guard of 46 uniformed and plainclothes men.

Judge Dismisses Case Against Atlanta Barber

A case brought against Bryant Griffin, barber, of 153 Mitchell street, by J. S. Vandhitch, secretary of the city barber board, was dismissed yesterday by Recorder A. W. Callaway.

Callaway upheld a demurrer filed by defense counsel stating that Griffin was not guilty of cutting prices below the minimum set by the board as alleged in the complaint.

City Allocation Of Traffic Fund Hasn't Passed

Gilliam, Newspapers Erred in Saying Council Acted on Survey.

Neither officials of the Atlanta city council nor the city hall press are infallible.

That developed yesterday, when it was learned that a much-publicized $550 city allocation for a WPA traffic survey of metropolitan Atlanta was not approved by city council Monday, despite announcements from Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, and all Atlanta daily newspapers.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday began a search for the measure. He wanted to fix his approval to it and expedite start of the work. After he looked vainly through several hundred council resolutions and ordinances, he gave up and called City Comptroller B. Graham West.

He was told that the measure did not exist, although Gilliam told city hall reporters it was approved along with several score of other fiscal papers. It will be presented, and is expected to get the unanimous approval of council, either at a special meeting within the next few days or at council's regular meeting, May 13.

House Defeats CAA Transfer, 232 to 153

Senate Must Also Disapprove Proposal or It Takes Effect.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—By the one-sided vote of 232 to 153, the house voted today to kill President Roosevelt's reorganization order shifting the independent Civil Aeronautics Authority to the Commerce Department.

The resolution now goes to the senate. Under the terms of the reorganization act, the order, despite the house vote, will take effect next month unless the senate also disapproves it.

Representative Ramspeck, of Georgia, voted for disapproving the transfer. The following Georgia congressmen voted for it: Brown, Camp, Cox, Gibbs, Pace, Peterson, Tarver and Vinson.

Carriers of Letters Will Gather Here

North Georgia District Association of City Letter Carriers will meet at 4 o'clock Saturday, May 18, at the Henry Grady hotel, with the Atlanta Letter Carriers' Social Club as hosts, President L. H. Chambers, of the North Georgia group, announced yesterday.

Speakers will include Val J. Wells, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Ben T. Huie, commissioner of labor. A banquet and dance are scheduled for the night.

'Cotton Ed' Spurns Third-Term Vote

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—Senator "Cotton Ed" Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, served notice today he would not be a delegate to the Democratic national convention if the South Carolina state convention instructed its delegates to vote for a third term for President Roosevelt.

His home county convention named him a delegate to the state convention and at the same time instructed the county delegation to support a third-term proposal.

Atlanta Streamlines Collection of Garbage

The first step in the streamlining of Atlanta garbage collection was begun yesterday when four giant automatic loading motor trucks were placed in service.

Mayor Hartsfield, Sanitary Department Chief H. J. Cates and members of council showed the new equipment off at points of vantage throughout the city, and the mayor said that the entire department will be equipped with the new-type trucks within three years.

Pipe Line Permission Is Granted by Clayton

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. JONESBORO, Ga., May 8.—The Clayton county commission today gave its unanimous consent for construction of a gasoline pipe line beneath county highways.

The permission was granted the Southeastern Pipe Line Company, building a line from Port St. Joe, Fla., through Georgia to the Tennessee line near Chattanooga.

Consent was granted in a resolution signed by Commissioners H. L. Turner, L. A. Evans, J. D. McElroy, and Jim Mundy.

Birds Nesting In Mail Boxes Irk Uncle Sam

Baldwin Man Urges Georgians To Build Them Homes.

Uncle Sam is a worried old man these days. Not only is he having to watch the war developments in Europe, but to add to his troubles the bluebirds are building nests in his rural mail boxes.

With the advent of spring, the feathered songsters in Georgia are flocking to the mail boxes to set up housekeeping, Connie Watts, of Baldwin, a bird lover, pointed out on a visit to the state department of agriculture.

The old Uncle is a bit touchy about having his mail boxes filled with straw and leaves and a lot of other trash, but Watts thinks he has a plan to soothe the bewhiskered gentleman's worries.

"Build homes for them," advised Watts, who is president of the Southern Bluebird Association. He pointed out that Georgians should not drive the birds from the mail boxes unless they were provided with other homes.

"Three important birds need to have homes provided," he continued. "They are bluebirds, wrens and purple martins. Farmers and city dwellers can help their propagation greatly by providing homes for them, built of boxes or gourds, and placed so high that cats cannot reach them."

Two Brothers Freed In Police Chief Slaying

MACON, Ga., May 8.—(P)—A Wilcox county jury has acquitted Howard and Jack Roberson, Abbeville brothers, of charges that they killed Police Chief Sam J. Rhodes, after two-and-a-half hours' deliberation.

The brothers testified they shot the police chief in self-defense on the night of February 25, during an argument attributed by some witnesses to the killing of a dog and others to bitterness over Rhodes' defeat in an election for sheriff.

JUNIOR ORATION WINNER.

ATHENS, Ga., May 8.—Warren Weston, of Athens, has been named winner of the annual University of Georgia junior oration. Speaking on "Georgia's Two Escapes From the Present," he declared that the worst way to escape would be to dream of the glory of the past. He advocated building industry and making agriculture a paying business, as a better method.

MATTRESSES FOR NEEDY. AUGUSTA, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Approximately 100 bales of surplus cotton will be used in Richmond county to provide free mattresses for families whose gross annual income is less than $400. The plan was suggested by County Farm Agent Bright McConnell, approved by the Richmond county commission. Cotton and ticking will be furnished by the federal government, and work will be done under supervision of farm and home demonstration agents.

DENTISTS TO MEET. MACON, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Dental authorities of national note will address sessions of the 72nd annual convention of the Georgia Dental Association here May 13-16. Clinics and forum discussions will be program features.

GET SET

for a Real adventure!

Come on—let's go—for there's an experience waiting for you not far away—that you'll long remember.

It's a bottle of beer—but that doesn't tell the half of it. It's beer with a glorious flavor, a tantalizing tang, a lively perfection such as you have never tasted before.

It's a beer fit for those great occasions of life that call for something special—it's an even finer Schlitz.

But wait. There's something more—for this even finer Schlitz is brought to you with all its original flavor—protected from the effect of air.

And that's great news! Air is beer's worst enemy. Even the small amount in the neck of the bottle can attack the life and flavor of beer.

Now Schlitz has perfected a process to eliminate that air—to remove it an instant before the beer is bottled.

So Schlitz—shielded from the effect of air—stays flavor-fresh right up to the moment you drink it. Just notice that life and sparkle as it foams into your glass and gathers a proud, high collar of frothy white. Just taste that extra goodness of this fresh and glorious beer.

But why waste words when you could be drinking it now? Drop in somewhere nearby and get set for a real adventure.

Getting Acquainted

with Schlitz Beer requires no period of taste adjustment. The things you miss in its flavor are the bitterness or over-sweetness that are never to be found in this truly great, dry beer. Your first bottle—even your first sip—will tell you that Schlitz is your kind of beer—exactly.

Note the new cream, gold and brown label on the famous brown bottle.

PROTECTED!

The space you see in the Schlitz bottle is not air—but the breath of the beer itself. The famous flavor of Schlitz is never changed from the day it leaves the brewery.

FOR GREAT OCCASIONS AN EVEN FINER.

and Pay for It in Installments.

NEW YORK, May 8.—(P)—Sixty-six American railroads announced today that they would sponsor, beginning May 20, a "travel-on-credit" plan, enabling passengers to take a trip and pay for it later—in installments.

Under the plan the prospective traveler making a trip costing $50 or more could apply for credit to either a travel agent on a railway ticket office.

The application would be passed on within 24 hours after a routine credit check, and no collateral or down payment would be required. A "nominal service charge" would be added for the credit accommodation. The financing would be handled by the Travelers' Credit Corporation, in which the railroads will invest no money, but with which they will co-operate.

"Credit is not necessarily confined to the cost of transportation alone," said a statement by the participating railroads released by C. L. Hunter, chairman of the Trunk Line Association.

"It may be used for Pullman accommodations, all-expense tours, which include hotels and meals, specified side trips, steamship travel, and any other service that is sold through the railroad ticket office except money orders and travelers' checks."

Marshall R. Diggs, of Dallas, Texas, who resigned in October, 1938, as acting controller of the currency, is executive vice president of the Travelers' Credit Corporation.

Fulton Police Plan Uniform Records

The Fulton county police department will begin immediately the installation of a uniform police record system approved by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, it was announced yesterday when the Fulton county commission authorized the work and voted the employment of a clerk to assist in the work.

Paul Dowis, who recently completed a course at the FBI school, will be in charge of the work.

He said the new system will include daily reports on all cases handled by the department. These records will be kept on approximately 20 different standardized forms and indexed for ready reference.

West Green Steer Wins Show Prize

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DOUGLAS, Ga., May 8.—A Hereford grade steer, shown by Aubrey Meeks, of West Green, was named grand champion in the FFA fat cattle show held here yesterday. The reserve champion was owned by James McCollum, of Broxton.

A price of 26 1-2 cents a pound was paid for the 625-pound champion when he was offered for sale. The reserve champion, weighing 770 pounds, brought 16 1-4 cents a pound. Both animals were in the heavyweight group. They were bought by local businessmen.

First place in the lightweight group went to a steer owned by Alfred Mosley, of Broxton. This animal brought 14 1-2 cents a pound at the sale.

Child Killed Returning With Sweets for Party

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 8. (P)—Twelve-year-old Marie Bullis invited 13 child guests to her birthday party today. Because she was ill, she enlisted the aid of her five-year-old sister, Elizabeth, to buy candy.

Elizabeth bought jelly beans and other goodies and was watching over them in the rear seat of the sedan driven by her mother, Mrs. Mildred Bullis, when the car collided with another at an intersection. Elizabeth died. There won't be any party.

Roosevelt Is 'Tapped' By Omicron Delta Kappa

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—President Roosevelt was "tapped" today for honorary membership in Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership fraternity with chapters in 62 colleges and universities.

The honor was conferred by members of the University of Maryland chapter at College Park, in the presence of Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, also a member.

Coast Guard Recognizes Bravery of Reserve Fleet

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(P)—The coast guard recognized for the first time today the bravery of its newly organized reserve motorboat fleet.

Coast Guard Commandant R. R. Waesche officially commended L. B. Bonner, La Porte, Texas, for saving four boys afloat in Galveston bay April 21 in a gale. The reserve was organized last fall, to enroll private owners of motorboats and yachts in an auxiliary life-saving service.

500 Georgia Firemen Go to College Here

Students Learn Latest Methods of Control From Experts.

Suburban commuters who travel along Lee street are hereby notified that fire engine house No. 7 is not on fire, despite the presence of assorted ladders, hose, trucks, smoke and firemen.

The activity, with all the external appearances of a three-alarm blaze without the blaze, is nothing more than the seventh annual Georgia Fire College and the 500 firemen wandering around are "students" from all sections of the state.

Three Courses.
They drifted into town yesterday and immediately began three courses that describe the newest in fire control. Professors are fire-fighting experts from five states, including several members of the Atlanta department.

The firemen were officially welcomed last night by Mayor Hartsfield. This morning they will continue the study of such technical subjects as hazardous chemicals, tactics and hose laying, knots, ladder raising, effective streams, first aid and water.

During the three-day meeting the boys in blue will take a fireman's holiday by clambering around on test ladders, directing experimental hose lines, putting out small fires with chemicals and tying all sorts of knots.

Principal Speakers.
Among the top speakers are Ralph J. Scott, former fire chief of Los Angeles and now managing director of the National Association of Fire Chiefs; Chief Anselmo Lozano, of Havana, Cuba; Professor Thomas H. Quigley, of Georgia Tech, and Captains J. L. Ivey, C. C. Davis and P. C. Bouck, of the Atlanta fire department.

Sponsored by the State Department of Education with the local department as hosts, the fire college is being conducted at engine house No. 7, on the corner of Lee and Oak streets. Many of the registered firemen have been attending the college annually since its beginning in 1933.

At the final session Friday afternoon diplomas will be presented by Atlanta's Chief C. C. Styron, assisted by Harry Phillips, assistant fire marshal, who directs the college.

FIREMAN MAYOR—Now if Mayor Hartsfield had to climb a pole, this is the way he would do it. If he had to slide down a pole, he would do it the same way. He demonstrated his two-way ability yesterday at the Georgia Fire College, at Engine House No. 7, which has attracted 500 firemen from the state.

Lottery Chiefs Hide on Farms, Boykin Asserts

Repeats Offer of $100 Reward for Tip-Offs Leading to Raids.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin, in renewing his drive against revival of the lottery here, yesterday disclosed that lottery racketeers had set up "headquarters" in ten adjoining or nearby counties.

Attributing the exodus to raids which followed "tips" from citizens, Boykin re-affirmed his offer to pay $100 for information leading to a raid on a headquarters and urged residents of adjoining counties to be on the lookout for evidence of "bug" operations in their communities.

Boykin said these "bug" operators have rented lonely farm houses for headquarters and are using dilapidated looking autos to transport tickets and money so as to avoid attracting attention.

A tiny moth and the yucca flower are vitally dependent one on the other in the southwest, for no other insect can pollinate the plant, and the yucca harbors eggs and larvae of the moth.

Divorce Awarded To Greer Garson

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—(AP)—Greer Garson, red-haired British actress who gained attention by her work in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," won a divorce today from Edward Alec Abbot Snelson, a member of the British civil service in central India.

The actress, suing under her married name of Eileen Evelyn G. Snelson, told Superior Judge Clarence Hanson the marriage lasted only one month and five days, in the autumn of 1933.

It ended, she said, because of her husband's temperamental outbursts and because he insisted that she accompany him to India.

Furthermore, she said, Snelson wrote her in 1938 that he was in love with "a girl named Judith."

Transparent bags made of sheet rubber hydrochloride are now being used for packaging liquids.

MADRID, May 8.—(AP)—Spain today signed an agreement with Italy covering clearing arrangements in trade between the two countries. It is similar to those she previously had concluded with France and Great Britain.

PESTERED BY FILTHY ANTS?

Here's what to do: First, keep kitchen floors, pantry shelves, cupboards, etc., free from food particles, sugar, etc. Second, sprinkle Bee Brand Insect Powder in corners and along the back edges of shelves, back of and under the sink, refrigerator and stove. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build powder barriers between ants' nests and places where they feed. Repeat these treatments regularly. Bee Brand kills ants, roaches and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use. Insect on the genuine Bee Brand Insect Powder in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

Certain Emory Safety Division Courses To Be Open to Co-Eds WGSP Today

All Divisions Will Admit Women in Summer, Stipe Explains.

Emory University officials yesterday assured their predominantly male student body that, in spite of a change of policy which bans co-eds from the general college, there will be no decline next year in the enrollment of women.

Registrar J. G. Stipe, in response to repeated questions about the policy change, said, "Women students will continue to be admitted to the library school, the graduate school, the schools of law and theology on the same basis as men."

"Particularly during the summer session," he pointed out, "all divisions of the university, including the college of arts and science, will be open to women students."

In accord with the University Center project, Emory last fall prohibited the entrance of co-eds to the general college of arts and sciences. In co-operation with Agnes Scott College, however, students of the Decatur institution may enroll in certain Emory courses.

Counterfeit Half-Dollars Pour in Upon Merchant
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., May 8.—E. L. Herrington, who operates a store on the Telfair road near Cedar Grove, reports an unusual number of counterfeit half-dollars are in circulation in this section.

Exhibiting one of the coins, Mr. Herrington said that before he noticed it, the cash register in his place was "stuck" with 15 of them. The coins are excellent imitations of the real ones. Only close examination reveals they are counterfeit, but detection is easy when they are dropped on a hard surface—if one has a real half dollar to drop for comparison.

Honolulu Reporter Wins Suit for $3,200 Reward

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 8.—(AP)—A Honolulu newspaper reporter was awarded $3,200 today for information leading to the arrest of a convicted Pennsylvania murderer.

A Luzerne county jury upheld the claim of Harry L. Stroup, police reporter for the Honolulu Star-Bulletin, to a $2,500 reward, plus $700 interest, in the case of Peter M. Duca, now serving a life term for the slaying of Alex Campbell in Pittston, Pa., 12 years ago.

Albert E. Allsworth, of Upper Darby, Pa., former prohibition agent in Honolulu, also claimed the reward.

Community Complains Of Being 'Half-Counted'

SALT LAKE CITY, May 8.—(AP)—The community of Soldier Summit is a straddler—right across the Utah-Wasatch county line—and has suffered as a consequence.

Postmaster Parley Bills complains the census takers counted only on the Utah side this year. A decade ago, he says, they worked in Wasatch county and ignored the other half. Supervisor Heber Meeks said his checkers would visit both sides of the town before they quit.

The Question Mark

The Mediterranean today stands athwart the world as a gigantic question mark, holding the answer to the future of a dozen countries. If the Allies act in the Near East, or if Mussolini is driven into the arms of one combatant or the other, then this will become the Second World War. Yet, if they do not, Hitler will have won a major victory in that he has been able, and will continue to be able, to conduct a series of localized wars to which there so far has been no answer.

Implicit in the Mediterranean question is one of the great historical reverses that so often change the tides of civilization. Hitler has reverted to the policies of Bismarck in that he has sought always to act in a series of "localized wars," through which the Iron Chancellor built up the great German empire. When the Kaiser "dropped the pilot," he also abandoned this concept of expansionist policy and collided head-on with England. Hitler, though we may call him maniac, has cunningly built upon the ruins of the Bismarckian policy and so far has been able to win through because he stands secure behind the West Wall and the Kattegat, even though he is at war with the two great major military and naval powers of the world. The problem now confronting the Allies is one of ending this localization of conflict and of forcing Hitler into an "all out" war in which they can strike on several fronts while at the same time maintaining the rigid blockade.

This is why one must place credence in the mounting reports of a demarche to Italy, a credence bolstered by the obvious preparations being made for action in the Near East and in the basin of the Mediterranean. The fact that the fleet is based at Alexandria does not necessarily indicate that the Allies intend offensive action directly against Italy in the Mediterranean, but rather that they are taking strong measures to safeguard their vital flank at Suez for action through the Balkans should the Duce decide the time is ripe for entrance into the conflict on the side of Germany.

In the event Italy does enter the conflict as a Nazi ally, the probabilities are that the chief actions against Italy will be an offensive down through the Valley of the Po to sever southern Italy from communication with Germany and to open Hitler's Austrian flank; tremendous aerial attacks to cut off the vital Italian supplies of coal from Germany through the Brenner Pass; closing of the Straits of Gibraltar to Italian shipping, submarines and warcraft; possibly localized action against the Dodecanese islands to remove a threat to the Turkish flank through which troops and supplies would have to be poured for Balkan action, and, finally, an offensive or defensive line on the border of Greece with Albania.

An offensive through the Balkans against Hitler would be entirely logical for the Allies if they feel their war preparations have reached the necessary peak. For tremendous problems of transport and supply would be involved. On the other hand, it would have the manifold advantage of severing Hitler from his vital oil supplies from Rumania and the Russian Black Sea ports, leaving him only the trickle that could filter through Russian Poland. It would have the great disadvantage of possibly involving Russia in the conflict and widening the warfare through the entire Near East, from the Adriatic to the borders of India.

Whatever the outcome, it is evident great forces have been released in the Mediterranean, and the world soon should know the answer.

For Italy, there will be no war for the nonce, says Mussolini. The old sport must see the contenders coming into the stretch before laying his bet.

A cool million is offered by a Pittsburgh syndicate to anyone bringing in Hitler alive and whole. No bounty will be paid on just the mustache.

Rights are those constitutional guarantees that the ism boys insist upon while selling a Utopia in which they aren't.

An accused man in a London court is found to have used burglar tools of foreign make. Such lack of patriotism brands one as little better than a munitions tycoon.

"Victor Emmanuel doesn't want Italy in the war." Who?

The Hatch Bill

The second Hatch bill, passed by the senate but temporarily stymied in the house because of an unprecedented mode of procedure in the judiciary committee, would regulate political activities of state employees who derive any part of their salaries from federal funds. It would also limit individual campaign contributions to $5,000 and forbid expenditure of more than $3,000,000 on any national political campaign.

The bill, in its primary purpose, seeks to reduce the influence of job holders in political campaigns. This, on its face, is a desirable and worthy purpose, one that every believer in the purity of elections cannot fail to endorse. Too long has the outcome of many American primaries and elections been decided by factions motivated by no other desire than to hold their own, or friends', jobs. Any move designed to make election results more the unbiased judgment of the free voters, on men and issues, should be backed by every sincere believer in the American system.

It was apparent, however, in the action of the house judiciary committee, that there are representatives in congress who would not approve such a measure, at least in a political way. Undoubtedly some of them can advance plausible arguments against the bill, but the manner of action first taken by the committee indicates strongly that the opposition is mainly based upon the hope of men seeking re-election to benefit by the very type of activities the bill would outlaw.

The committee voted in such a manner that not even its members could know how any other member cast his ballot, for or against reporting the measure to the floor. The result was that the bill was pigeonholed by a committee vote of 14 to 10. Yet, according to Representative Dempsey, of New Mexico, 14 committee members told him they had voted against tabling the bill. Which means, in plain English, that four of the committee members lied. For only 10 so voted in actual fact. Unfortunately there is no means of discovering which four of the 14 were guilty of untruth.

President Roosevelt has urged passage of the bill. It now appears it will be brought to the floor, despite the peculiar committee action. It is to be hoped the house will, at least, be given the chance to vote on the measure and, at the same time, it is hoped that vote will be by roll call, so that each congressman's constituents, and the nation as a whole, may know how he stands on the important issue involved.

The strange action of the judiciary committee, and the subsequent lying by at least four of its members, if Representative Dempsey's statement is correct, may yet prove a boomerang which will go far toward insuring enactment of the bill.

Pass the Meat, Please

That Americans, as a nation, are eating less meat today than a quarter century ago is the rather surprising deduction to be drawn from a statement recently made public by the Institute of American Meat Packers.

This shows that the population has increased approximately 40 per cent in the past 25 years, whereas the consumption of meat and lard for the same period has increased only about 12 per cent. Furthermore, it is stated, Americans as a nation eat less meat than many others. The average per capita annual consumption for the years 1935 to 1939 inclusive, in this country, was only 137 pounds, whereas in Argentina it was 326 pounds, in New Zealand 321 pounds and in Australia, 205 pounds.

The Institute of American Meat Packers proposes to do something about this. Convinced that meat is a healthful, strength-building, desirable and essential portion of the human diet, the Institute is launching a nationwide advertising campaign in newspapers, magazines, etc.

"Meat is one of the most important foods, good nutrition of strong and sound bodies," says the Institute.

No reason is advanced for the drop in American meat eating habits, but it is probable that changing conditions of life and, during the past 10 years, the large number of unemployed and impoverished families, have both contributed to the condition.

NEW WORDS IN THE MAKING

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Texas is among the most unlikely places in the country to give birth to a word like "shoe-trician." Why? Are not Texans people, and are not people word-tricians?

Texas is in the Union (is it not?), in the Union in which were born such words as mortician, cosmetician, beautician, bootician, and with the kind help of H. L. Mencken, whoopician. Everybody might just as well sit back and wait for that awful and not far distant day when every cowboy crooner will be singing "I'm a lone cow-trician."

It is a gigantic movement. Only today a Hoosier was heard to remark with great feeling, "I wish I had consulted a taxician."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

DARK HORSES—ROBERTS AND McNARY

A Republican ticket headed by Justice Owen J. Roberts, with Senate Leader Charles McNary in second place, is being vaguely but increasingly frequently discussed. Supposing the Republican convention should be deadlocked, the ticket looks as good a bet as any. Republican gosses are rising, in many states, at the thought of Thomas E. Dewey. The young gang-buster, who has already put Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg out of the race, may not make the grade himself. Meanwhile, Senator Robert A. Taft is being shoved into the position of a stop-Dewey candidate, which in politics is equivalent to being the horse that takes the ginger out of the favorite. Meanwhile, the majority of other Republican candidates are either hopeless selling-platters or somehow disqualified from the race.

Governor John Bricker, of Ohio, for example, has been admirably summed up as "an honest Harding." Governor Arthur James, of Pennsylvania, represents no mere return to the Harding era, but a revival of the Moros of S. Grant. Wendell Willkie, obviously one of the ablest conservatives in the country, as yet has too little practical political support and evokes too much enthusiasm in Wall Street. Publisher Frank Gannett and Senator Styles Bridges are vociferous but not winning candidates. Thus, aside from a scattering of favorite sons, the secondary Republican possibilities boil down to House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin and Justices Roberts and Harlan F. Stone.

NIBBLES FOR ROBERTS If, instead of being on the supreme bench, Justice Roberts occupied some other position of equivalent importance, he would undoubtedly be a conspicuous possibility by now. The objection to him is that the supreme court must not be mixed with politics, and that for a justice to resign to become a presidential candidate inevitably produces such a mixture. Many leaders of conservative thought would be shocked by Roberts' nomination.

In recent months, Roberts is known, moreover, to have received many nibbles and overtures from politicians looking for a man they could back with enthusiasm. He has turned them all down flat, suggesting that even if drafted he might refuse to run. He will undoubtedly continue to do so. But there is a vast difference between seeking to avoid a presidential nomination and turning it down when offered. Unless Justice Roberts is completely inhuman, he could be induced to change his mind when the time came. And despite the theoretical objection to the candidacy of a justice, coming from the high bench would actually be a political asset to Roberts, since it would give him a stature before the country which few other Republican candidates can claim.

He is younger, more active and a more effective speaker than his colleague Stone. He seems, somehow, to measure up to the responsibilities of the presidency better than Joe Martin, who is, for all his real ability, remarkably local in many of his views. In fact, discounting the theoretical objection (which is an extremely strong and serious one, of course), Roberts would be as good a practical candidate as the Republicans could find.

THE FARMER'S FRIEND The virtues of a Roberts-McNary ticket are sufficiently obvious. Roberts is a middle-of-the-road man, sensible, able, with a record few groups could object to, and an appealing personality. A Pennsylvanian, he would probably have his largest following in the east. McNary, on the other hand, belongs to the liberal group of Republicans, is remembered throughout the country as the farmer's friend in the Republican party, and might be counted on to gain many votes in the doubtful states beyond the Mississippi. Neither man has many party enemies. Together they would make a ticket most Republicans would be glad to fight hard for.

McNary will start with the Oregon delegates. Roberts will have none unless Kenneth Simpson throws him the 20 New York county votes. Simpson has been talking a Roberts-McNary ticket of late, and while he would probably prefer Bricker, Pennsylvania's powerful Joe Pew has also shown himself very friendly to Roberts. In other Republican camps, the Roberts-McNary ticket is also being mentioned as a second best.

That is, of course, all that is. Justice Roberts may be regarded as perfectly sincere in his desire to avoid being dragged into the Republican convention's proceedings. The last thing in the world desired by McNary is to be removed from his senate leadership. But as they are liked in all the camps, have many obvious suitabilities and would form a strong team, Roberts and McNary might well be tapped for the big jobs if the Republicans get themselves into the kind of tangle which has no simple solution.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

It Did Happen Here.

To those of us who have contended that dictatorships and the rule of force are impossible in America, it is rather startling to read the story of Louisiana under the rule of "Kingfish" Huey Long and his successors, as it is told in the current issue of the Satevepost by Alva Johnston. Mr. Johnston's story is titled "Louisiana Revolution," hence deals with the change that is taking place in that state since the election of Governor Sam Jones and the indictments and convictions that resulted, largely, from the work of O. John Rogge.

The job facing the new Governor is described as "the long uphill task of changing Louisiana from a dictatorship to a democracy." Blunt words and alarming. For they reveal that dictatorship hasn't been impossible in this country as we have liked to believe.

Really, reading Mr. Johnston's story, one can't help but come to the conclusion that, while the racket lasted, the insiders of the Louisiana administration rode one of the richest gray trains ever to run. "During the post-Huey and pre-Rogge days, a fat wad of folding money of high denomination, something to twirl around and toy with was as essential to the wardrobe of a member of the ruling class as a snuffbox to an eighteenth-century gentleman. When Rogge asked Dick, the Governor (Leche), why he took $68,000 bills instead of a $68,000 check in a hot-oil transaction, Dick laughed heartily. He then took out a deck of $1,000 bills, tossed them on the table and explained that he always wore them, like any other well-groomed man. The simple-minded Rogge, who had never seen a $1,000 bill before, was impressed, but he indicted Dick just the same. Seymour Weiss, the man who had reached into a coat pocket and peeled off the $68,000 bills for Dick, the Governor, was also indicted, and styles began to change."

What Huey Said. Comparing Huey Long to his successors, Mr. Johnston says "Huey was a mixture of genius and larceny; his successors had no genius."

And, just to make the record complete and to prove the respectability of the Kingfish, anyway, Huey himself is quoted as saying, shortly before his assassination: "If anything happens to me, the people who try to wield the powers that I have created will all land in jail."

Well, 200 of them are indicted and many of them are either in jail or headed there fast. Read about it, as described by Mr. Johnston in the Satevepost.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Who Are Enemies?

NEW YORK, May 8.—By what reasoning, I would like to know, can anyone arrive at a calm, confident belief that if the Allies lose this war the enemies of the American nation and of the American civilization or way of life will refrain from pressing their conquest against a rich but ill-armed, meddlesome but non-military people who regard themselves as the guardians of this hemisphere, but walk their beat with a peashooter? Contrary to superstition, the American people are not soldiers by training, habit or instinct, and their weakness in arms, military equipment and organization and in numbers of men familiar with the military life is a dangerous temptation to the enemies. Who are the enemies, then? They have identified themselves.

Russia is an enemy, and has violated the written terms by which diplomatic relations were resumed after a long period of hesitancy. Russia organizes and conducts traitorous activities in the United States under the general direction of the Communist party. Russia's very reason for living is to destroy the American kind of civilization.

Japan is an enemy, and the enemy of Italy has been underestimated or ignored, because colonies of Italians or half-Americanized Italians live apart from the life of other Americans in little, close-packed colonies. These colonies are controlled by anti-American agents of Mussolini, who co-operate with the Italian consuls, who, in turn, act under orders from Rome or from the Italian embassy.

Citizen Traitors Holding American citizenship conduct a system of blackmail among the Italian colonists in American cities whereby these people are compelled to patronize merchants approved by the Fascists, collections are taken out of the poverty of the people, and the relief money paid from American taxes, the proceeds being sent to a hostile German or Italian nation abroad which is in league with Hitler, who is in league with the other enemies, Japan and Russia.

Germany's enmity is written in all the conduct of the German nation under Hitler, for brown or Nazi Bolshevism is no less anti-American than the red. These enemies proclaim their enmity not by direct declarations against the American nation as such but as a challenge to the American kind of civilization. They are in revolution against democracy and freedom everywhere, and if the time comes when the British and French are conquered there will be nothing intervening between them and the United States.

But perhaps someone has information which would tend to show that when this revolution has won in Europe it will not go farther. If so, such information has never been disclosed. The evidence and all experience to date indicate that the revolution is implacable, and the riches of this hemisphere and the opportunities for the type of political operations which the Germans, Russians and Italians employ are at the same time a temptation to them, and a warning to the United States.

Only A Wish The belief that these enemies would not invade this hemisphere is only a wish, and Denmark and Norway were nations which used wishes instead of weapons and refused to believe that they could be invaded, because that would be bad. It is difficult now to imagine the disappearance of the British navy, but it was unthinkable a year ago that Hitler would crush Czechoslovakia after proclaiming that he had no more territorial ambitions and wanted no Czechs. Today the Czechs are sub-humans, the robot servants of Hitler's chosen people, slaves in their own land. And in Poland, on which Hitler has yet to declare war, as Cardinal Hlond reports to the Vatican, a Catholic priest was tied to a stake, shot and buried in a Jewish cemetery by Jews who first were compelled to kiss the feet of the corpse.

To those who have regarded as cruel the chivalrous Allied temporary occupation of German territory after the first World War the German conduct in Austria, where only God knows how many were massacred; in Czechoslovakia, where high school students were executed for uttering patriotic cries, and in Poland, where boys were shot in batches for sniping the invader in an undeclared war, may be cited as reminders that nothing is unthinkable. These are not temporary occupations of territory; these are conquests, and the soil of this hemisphere is not sacred.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

PLAIN STORIES THAT THRILL

An afternoon ago I sat in a school room not many miles from Atlanta talking with teachers of vocational agriculture and with a home economics teacher.

They talked of how they were trying to take the school to the farm and into the homes. They told stories of meetings for adults held in various communities; of preparing food "budgets" so mothers might know how many quarts of vegetables, fruits, meats and soup mixture to can in order that the family would have an adequate diet.

They talked of how plans were made for certain vegetables to be planted at definite times so maturity might be reached for canning of the soup mixtures.

By midsummer the farmers and their families will be able to bring in their fruits and vegetables and can them for home use.

This one county, a good one, has 225 cases of malnutrition among its school children. It is one of the state's problems, this malnutrition. Fulton and DeKalb counties have the same problem.

We talked on. I looked at the small, slim girl who, with confidence and assurance, talked of her work of how she and her fellow teachers held meetings, persuaded,ajoled and sold adults on the idea of making the school their partner. The stories are plain as the land. And as powerful. She and others like her are doing tremendous things in this state.

THE FEEL OF BELONGING

I thought back to the best phrase I ever heard about the real job of schools. It was from a teacher in Denmark, and he said: "The school should teach the student to rationalize himself with the problems about him. It should make him and the entire community have the feeling of belonging; the feeling of understanding the problems themselves; of feeling themselves a part of the problems and being able to solve them."

I still think that is right. The farmer who did not have an education which made him able to appreciate his own country, the literature and the songs of his country, who was not given, in his high school, training in practical farm problems, was cheated. Most of the farmers of today were.

The new educational plans for vocational and home training are the finest asset the state has. They, and the teachers, are the real hope.

And one slim girl who goes into the homes of her community and helps make them brighter and happier; who lifts some of the toil—

One vocational teacher who inspires young men and sends them forth trained, confident, a part of the life about them—

One young man, so trained, going back with a feeling of belonging, able to rationalize his problems and his own relationship to them—

Any one of these is of more value to the state of Georgia than all the politicians combined who go about talking vaguely of "fundamentals" and never saying, or knowing, what they are. They are the real heroes and heroines of the state.

The people of Georgia haven't needed anything more than this—the training to use what they already possess.

YOU HEAR THINGS

Georgia is stirring. Give the schools another decade and there will be an even quicker tempo. The young men and women are alive, curious, questioning, doubting.

That doubt is one of the finest things about them.

The teachers who say, "Don't just take my word for it. Test it. Don't accept statements just because they are made. Examine them. Don't take expressions at their face value. Look into them—they are the real teachers. And there are many of them."

You hear things to make you wince. As for instance—"This boy came to me," said the teacher, "and asked me to help him do something for his family. His father, the boy said, came in at nights worn out. The boy said his father would wash up, eat and go to bed. He wanted his father to meet people, to enjoy some of the school programs."

The teacher helped. That story could be multiplied many, many times.

It seems to me that little story explains one of the great strengths of Mr. Roosevelt. There was a great hunger in this country for a part in the life of the country; a great hunger to have what Mr. Roosevelt meant when he said "a more abundant life," and which his critics have twisted into meaning a loafing, useless existence on government bounty.

The gentlemen who oppose him have never been in a small farmhouse and watched the farmer reach up and turn on the first electric light ever to be in the house, a light brought by REA. They have not seen him look at the light and then at his family and smile.

It never came to him—the blessings of good light—until Roosevelt came along.

They don't understand, but the farmer understands—perfectly—what his benefit payments, for work done, are just what business has been getting in tariff protection for more than half a century. You won't find the farmer laughing at those smart jokes about being paid for the cotton he didn't grow and the pigs he didn't produce. That isn't the true story. The farmer understands.

The New Deal, for all its mistakes, has great support because millions of people believe the man who presented it honestly was trying to do something for them, to give them a part in the life of this country.

Animals Free of Insanity Don't Violate the Laws of Nature

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

A recent article discussing suicide contains this statement: "It is silly to assume that people who take their own lives are insane."

The writer is entitled to his opinion, but such a statement is too careless and unreasonable to deserve consideration. Even if writer and reader are agreed on the definition of insanity, the statement is still absurd, for nobody on earth can know the mental state of a suicide at the moment he ends his life.

We can't even be certain about the mental health of the living who rub elbows with us; for we must judge their minds with our own, and if theirs seem abnormal, the fault may be in ours.

Certainly the most charitable judgment is the assumption that a suicide didn't realize what he was doing. For even if we ignore the judgment of the church, the act is outlawed and condemned by the accepted standards of ethical behavior, since in most instances it seems the consummation of selfishness.

There are exceptions. Some men deliberately sacrifice themselves to benefit their families. During one period of depression, some insurance companies quit writing term insurance because so many men, heavily burdened with debt, were insuring their lives and killing themselves to provide money for their loved ones. Their sacrifice was wholly useless; yet they also may have been dejected, for their sense of values was obviously confused. They brought upon their families a weight of sorrow and anguish and loneliness for which no money could compensate.

Last summer one of America's most famous men wrote me a letter in which he excused and defended suicide. He said he had never worried about poverty or any other misfortune, since he had always felt free to end his life if it became unbearable, and fully intended to do so.

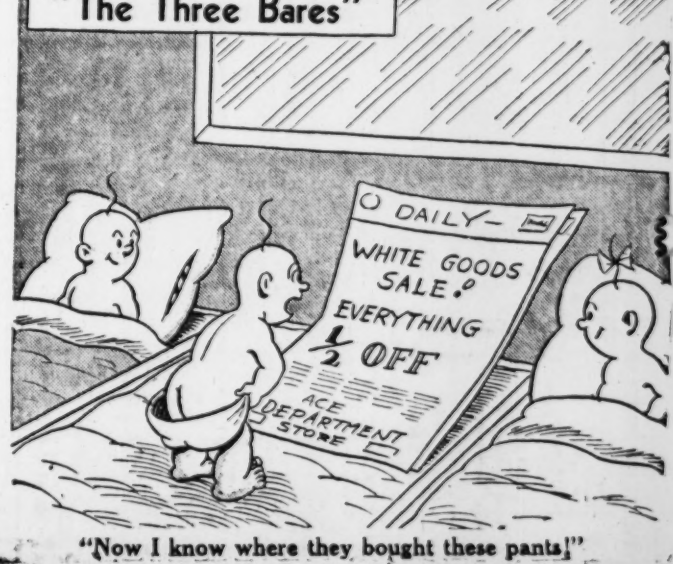

His intention to solve life's problems in the easy way isn't as heartless as it seems, for he is a bachelor. His many charities are proof of a generous spirit, and in all probability his attitude would be different if he had dependents.

Giving one's life for others indicates nobility rather than derangement, and there doubtless are selfish suicides who are quite sane when they choose death in preference to a life that seems unendurable.

But the sane and normal naturally dread death and do their utmost to escape it, and this alone should be evidence enough that one who seeks and embraces death is no longer normal, however sane he may seem.

ATLANTA CATTLE SHOW DREW BETTER STOCK

Editor, Constitution: Permit me to express to you, in behalf of the live stock committee and the Chamber of Commerce, our sincere appreciation of the splendid co-operation which you gave in publicizing the fifth annual Atlanta Fat Cattle Show. There was in evidence a great deal more interest and enthusiasm this year than at any time in the past and I am satisfied this was in large part due to the effectiveness in which you repeatedly told the story of this event.

You will be interested to know that a number of experienced cattlemen made the statement that the cattle at this show were uniformly better than at any of the four previous shows.

In my own mind I feel sure that the help which you gave will be of lasting benefit to agriculture in Georgia.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Mother's Day has become one of our most cherished institutions in this country. It does something for us that we very much need—something that blesses the individual and society. One does not stop to analyze the process. There is no need of such analysis. It is rather a matter of feeling than reasoning.

Whether one's mother is dwelling in the earthly tabernacle or in the Home above, the day brings its blessing just the same. Motherhood is not dependent, in its reach of blessing and benediction upon time or place.

Grace Noll Crowell has expressed in exquisite verse the significance of the right sort of home life in its blessing in time and eternity:

So long as there are homes to which men turn
At the close of the day;
So long as there are homes where children are,
Where mothers stay—
If love and loyalty and faith be found
Across those hills—
A stricken nation can recover from its gravest ills.

So long as there are homes where fires burn
And there is bread;
So long as there are homes where lamps are lit
And prayers are said;
Although a people falter through the dark—
And nations grope—
With God Himself back of these little homes—
We have sure hope.

It is my prayer—my confident belief—that this Mother's Day in 1940 will strengthen us each and all for the tasks ahead as it calls back to the Bible, back to the church, back to the altar, back to the sanctities of the home, back to the hopes and dreams of our mothers. God grant that it may be so.

Diocese Episcopalians To Assemble in Athens

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
ATHENS, Ga., May 8.—Laymen from the entire Episcopal diocese of Atlanta will assemble Saturday morning in Emanuel Episcopal church here for a day of religious instruction and discussion, largely under their own leadership.

There will be two informal addresses, one on "The Place in Our World of Today of the Historic Christian Church," and the other on "What the Layman Seeks for His Church, Both to Be and to Give." Both addresses will be followed by informal discussion.

The Rev. Matthew M. Warren, rector of Christ church, Macon, is the diocesan chairman of religious education, the committee which is sponsoring the layman's day.

In Denver it took just one minute and 20 seconds for a couple of youths to find out how long it would take a crowd if they shouted "murder" on a downtown intersection.

Two hundred persons came on the run when they stopped their car in the middle of the street and started shouting "Help, murder!"

Among the 200 were Patrolmen C. M. Johnson and W. J. Miller who were a block away. They filed charges of disturbing the peace.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills. Used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Delayed Trial Of Dan Eidson To Open Today

Boykin Says One of Five Flog Counts Will Be Dropped.

Trial of Dan Eidson, 25-year-old East Point youth, on assault and battery charges growing out of Ku Klux Klan floggings, will get under way in Fulton superior court this morning, after a one-day delay.

The trial had been scheduled to start yesterday, but a case started Tuesday extended over, so shortly after 2:30 o'clock, Judge Walter C. Hendrix, presiding, announced that he would not start the Eidson trial until this morning.

To Drop One Count.

While Eidson was named in a five-count indictment, Solicitor General John A. Boykin said one of the counts will be nolle prossed because Floyd Lee, also under indictment for participating in the floggings, has declined to testify. Both the state and defense announced "ready" when court opened.

Eidson will be represented by Attorneys John Hudson and H. A. Allen, while Solicitor General Boykin and Assistant Solicitor Daniel Duke will present the state's case.

Wife Present.

Eidson and his pretty wife of five months spent much of yesterday in the courtroom, but left shortly after Judge Hendrix made his announcement. Attorney Hudson said the defense will seek to prove that the whip Eidson is alleged to have made was for use in a charity minstrel show, and not for night flogging purposes. He also disclosed that the defense would offer evidence that Eidson was never a member of the "secret committee" of the East Point Klan, and had no knowledge of floggings. Both state and defense indicated the trial would require about two days.

Shaken Cabinet of Chamberlain Escapes Defeat

that Britain, in the future "for some time to come" as well as in the unhappy Norwegian campaign, must face "a great deal of difficulty, danger and suffering" because its air power is numerically inferior to Germany's. He acknowledged "our failure in the last five years to maintain air parity with Germany."

As for Trondheim, he admitted he acted on the advice of his chiefs of staff and assistants in favoring the "indirect" attack by land, instead of a frontal smash. The land attack failed and the Allied troops were withdrawn.

Churchill also took "the fullest responsibility" along with Chamberlain for the withdrawal of the land troops, which, he said, "saved us from a most disastrous entanglement."

There were 12,000 Allied troops to face 120,000 Germans, he said, and it was a question of withdrawing them of "leaving them to be destroyed."

The cost of smashing at Trondheim from the sea, he said, would have been more than it was worth.

Churchill said the reason why a big ship was not sent to Narvik in the first attack by five destroyers was because the only ship available was a battle cruiser and "we thought it would be a great damage to the fleet if we lost a battle cruiser."

"Looked Easier."

The admiral waited until it had the Warspite there, he said, and "it looked much easier the day after than it did the day before."

"It was a great relief to find that no controlled mine fields were laid."

Replying to a question by A. V. Alexander concerning surface ships in the Skagerrak, Churchill said, "The immense enemy air strength which can be brought to bear on our patrolling craft has made this method far too costly to be adopted."

"Losses which would be inflicted on a steady surface patrol from the air would undoubtedly very soon constitute a naval disaster," he continued.

"We therefore adopted the submarine blockade as the only method at our disposal," he said.

"There is a great deal of difference about being responsible for an order which may lose several valuable ships and expressing an opinion without such responsibility."

A German submarine which followed the Warspite was sunk by aircraft of the Warspite herself, the first lord said proudly.

Had Warspite been sunk, he said, critics would have screamed "Who was the madman who sent one of our most valuable ships into waters where it could so easily fall a prey to many dangers?"

"We are asked why we did not go into Trondheim, Bergen and other ports," he said. "My view has always been fixed on Narvik."

When the German outrage occurred, Churchill continued, "we were bound to go to the aid of the Norwegians," and Trondheim was chosen for the attack.

Scornful of suggestions that the navy withdrew from its undertakings, Churchill said, "The re-embarkation of our 12,000 men—for that is all there were—less than a division—was accomplished with very great skill and I may say with very good luck."

"No Reason to Change." Churchill said he thought the experts were right at the time and he saw no reason to alter his views "on what I have learned since."

The German advance was so rapid, he said, that the Norwegians were unable to destroy roads and railways.

The bombing of Namsos and Andalsnes prevented the landing of large reinforcements and even of artillery for the forces already landed, Churchill said, and "by the 25th the possibility of the arrival south of Trondheim of large German forces thoroughly equipped had to be foreseen."

Churchill said it might have been possible to send naval forces into Trondheim—which Admiral Keyes begged to do—"but the cost would have been disproportionate to the particular advantage to be gained."

British ships had scored "a ghastly success," Churchill said "7,000 or 8,000 Germans have been drowned."

Churchill said the navy was "perfectly ready to carry troops" into Trondheim but the plan was abandoned "because on the 17th the two diversionary landings at

High Points of Churchill's Address Before Commons

LONDON, May 8.—(AP)—Some of the high points in the address before the house of commons today in which First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill defended the Chamberlain government's conduct of the Norwegian campaign:

Our numerical deficiency in the air—despite our superiority in both men and materials—has condemned us and will condemn us for some time to come to a great deal of difficulty and suffering and danger which we must endure with firmness until more favorable conditions can be established—as they assuredly will be.

Losses which would be inflicted on a steady surface patrol (in the Skagerrak) from the air would undoubtedly very soon constitute a naval disaster.

We are asked why we did not go into Trondheim, Bergen and other ports. My view has always been fixed on Narvik.

The re-embarkation of our 12,000 men—for that is all there were (north and south of Trondheim)—less than a division—was accomplished with very great skill and I may say with very good luck. (He said there were 120,000 Germans.)

I suppose the enemy knows we are so there is no harm in saying that we are in possession of Narvik airport.

We now fight for Narvik.

Namsos and Andalsnes) had made good progress and it seemed easier to capture Trondheim by this method.

Churchill said he was speaking "in this plain manner" because of "the catarract of unworthy suggestions and absolute falsehoods poured out on the public in the last few days."

Churchill said Britain had to conserve her air force to guard against "grave dangers which may come upon us at any time" and reiterated that abandonment of Trondheim attack "saved us from a most disastrous debacle."

Narvik Airport Taken. Churchill disclosed the British have captured the airfield at Narvik.

When Alexander Interrupted to ask if Britain is in possession of Narvik airdrome, Churchill said, "I suppose the enemy knows we are, so there is no harm in saying that we are."

"We now fight for Narvik," he said. "I will not attempt to predict how the struggle will go, but conditions in that area are much more equal so far as ability to reinforce it are concerned."

Nazis Lose 10 to 1. Hitler lost 10 lives for every one Britain lost in Norway, Churchill said.

Replying to Admiral Keyes, Churchill said he sympathized with his desire to lead a valiant attack and to repeat in Scandinavian waters "the immortal story of the Zeebrugge mole."

Turning to impending vote, Churchill asserted that if commons wished to dismiss the government it should do it on a proper motion of censure and not on the adjournment.

"At no time in the last war were we in greater peril than we are now and I urge the house most strongly to deal with these matters not on a precipitate vote ill debated and on a wide and discursive field, but in a grave manner and in due time."

Taken To Task. The fiery Churchill took an unruly house to task for its heckling tactics.

"All day long we have had abuse and now you won't listen. You dare not listen to the argument. It is not fair. It is not British."

Amid a tumult of ministerial cheers, Churchill resumed the debate with the declaration that "no minister would condescend to hold office unless he had the support of the house."

Churchill prefaced his remarks with the statement that his speech yesterday was the best "I have ever heard him make."

He continued, "When Keyes came to me with his plans for forcing the entrance to Trondheim, I could only tell him that we had had a similar plan, in some ways to be preferred to his,

but that we had abandoned it."

Keys Would Have Led. Then he said had an attack been delivered Admiral Keyes would have had the privilege of leading it.

"Exception has been taken because the prime minister said he appealed to his friends and he thought he had some friends. I hope he has some friends," Churchill said belligerently, and the house cheered.

"He certainly had a good many when things were going well. It is most unworthy of the British character and of the Conservative party to turn in a moment of difficulty without all the process of grave debate. I am not advocating a controversy, and if I have broken out it is not that I meant to seek a quarrel with the honorable members."

"Let Feuds Die."

In concluding, Churchill said: "Let pre-war feuds die. Let personal quarrels be forgotten. Let party interests be ignored. Let all energies be harnessed. Let the ability and force of the nation be hurled into the struggle. At no time in the last war were we in greater peril than we are now. I urge the house most strongly to deal with these matters not on a precipitate vote, ill debated and on a wide and discursive field, but in a grave manner and in due time."

David Lloyd George, once more the Welsh lion of old, roared support for a hard-hitting demand of the Labor opposition for the overthrow of Chamberlain and his cabinet because of Britain's military failure in Norway.

With the white-faced, 71-year-old prime minister calling from the floor of the house for the full support of "my friends" and welcoming the opposition challenge, commons moved toward the late night vote in a tempest of words—including Lloyd George's cries of "Shame!" and "Half-baked!"

Day of Drama.

It was a day of drama, stemming from the point where Chamberlain, stung by the bitter words of Laborite Herbert Morrison, crumpled his notes into his pocket, sprang from the treasury bench and cried:

"I accept the challenge. I welcome it, indeed! At least, we shall see who is with us and who is against us. I call on my friends to support us in the lobby tonight!"

It was his fifth confidence test of the war and by far his most important. He won all the other votes, hands down.

And although parliamentary observers throughout the day gave "the Old Man of Munich" a narrow edge in the ultimate balloting, they felt it would lead Labor, which moved the vote, in the strongest position of the conflict. For one thing, Sir Samuel

Hoare, the air minister, one of three principal targets of the Labor assault, played into the enemy's hands when he admitted Britain's air force "is not nearly enough."

Lloyd George brought his unequalled prestige in parliament and the nation to bear upon Chamberlain by declaring the greatest contribution Chamberlain could make to the war effort of Great Britain would be to "sacrifice his seals of office."

Warning that the nation stands in "greater jeopardy" than in the last war, the white-haired premier of that other conflict cried:

"The prime minister (Chamberlain) has met this formidable foe—Hitler—in peace and in war. He has always been worsted!"

"Everything that has been done has been half-hearted, ineffective, without drive and unintelligent."

Voice Quivers.

Then, his voice quivering with anger at the thought that Britain had failed to help Norway with any result, the old Welshman declared:

"Britain's promissory notes are now rubbish in the market!"

Shocked conservatives packed in the steep government benches behind the cabinet muttered, "Shame! Shame!"

Churchill got up in an effort to stem the tide of Lloyd George's opposition, but the old man shouted him down.

"I hope Mr. Churchill will not allow himself to be converted into an air-raid shelter to keep the splinters from hitting his colleagues!" he snapped.

Then, shaking his finger, he turned again on Chamberlain for his allusion to his "friends in the house."

"It is not a question," he said, "of who is the prime minister's friend. This is a far bigger issue."

Morrison, 52-year-old head of London's municipal government and the son of a London bobby, attacked the government for hiding behind Churchill, "putting him in a shop window" whenever it was in trouble, letting him speak last tonight so there could be no counter-attack on it, "like a chief witness who refuses to go into the witness box."

Search Intensified For Sibyl Eason

Police yesterday intensified their search for Sibyl Eason, 16, who mysteriously disappeared from her home at 505 Chestnut street last Sunday night.

The former Girls' High school student left no clue as to her whereabouts, and evidently left the home while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Eason, were visiting during the afternoon.

She took with her a green and a pink dress, her parents said. She is five feet tall, weighs 102 pounds, and has black hair and brown eyes. She has a dark complexion and was bareheaded.

Pastor Pension Board Headed By M. S. Bell

New Methodist Foundation Organized by North Georgia Conference.

Miller S. Bell, of Milledgeville, yesterday was named chairman of the board of the newly chartered Methodist Foundation for Retired Ministers of the North Georgia conference.

Purpose of the new corporation, according to the charter, is to provide a permanent endowment fund to be held, invested and managed under the direction of the North Georgia conference of the Methodist church, the principal and income to be used to provide a comfortable living and maintenance for the retired ministers of the conference and the widows and dependent children of deceased ministers.

Retired ministers also will share in the general funds of the Methodist church set aside for the same purpose. A recent conference set the date of retirement at 72 years. Heretofore there had been no definite age limit on service.

Other officers named were the Rev. Dr. E. G. Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Atlanta, vice chairman, and W. P. Bloodworth, attorney, secretary. The Trust Company of Georgia was named as treasurer.

Ministers on the board of trustees are R. A. Edmondson, agent for homes for retired ministers; E. C. Few, pastor of the Druid Hills church; W. T. Hunnicutt, pastor at Cascade Heights; J. W. O. McKibben, of Decatur First church; and Lester Rumble, pastor of St. Marks.

Lay members are T. K. Glenn, W. N. Banks, Robert Strickland, J. Lawrence McCord and J. C. Wardlaw.

The fund will be maintained by gifts and bequests, and probably by small assessments of each active minister's salary. Mr. Mackay said after the first meeting of the trustees yesterday.

Pershing's Hardest Battle Was Fought in School

LACLEDE, Mo., May 8.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing's hardest battle was fought in the classroom.

James Elbert Wilson, 79, of Ozona, Fla., returned for the dedication of an 1,800-acre park named Pershing. As Laclede youths both sought the appointment to West Point. Pershing won the examination, 93 to 92 1-2. "I met Pershing after the World War," Wilson related, "and he told me, 'Boy, you gave me the toughest battle of my life.'"

Major G. S. Decker Transferred Here

Appointment of Major Gilbert S. Decker, formerly of Valdosta, as public relations and welfare secretary of the army in Atlanta, was announced last night by Commissioner W. C. Arnold, administrative head of the Salvation army.

Major Decker comes to Atlanta from Washington, D. C., where, for the past 11 years, he was active in civic affairs and a member of the American Association of Social Workers and many other clubs.

WPA Enrollment Drops To 2,058,760 on May 1

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The WPA today reported May 1 enrollment at 2,058,760, or 34,376 less than the 2,093,136 enrolled on April 24. Officials said a total of 229,000 persons had been dropped from WPA rolls during April.

Johnson's Widow Is Seeking $1,384

Mrs. Katherine G. Johnson, widow of the late County Commissioner Edwin Johnson, yesterday instituted mandamus action against the county treasurer to collect $1,384 in back salary which she claims is due his estate for salary cuts while he was county tax receiver.

The action sets out that the commissioners had fixed the salary at $9,000 a year, but later two salary cuts were ordered with the result that he received only $7,615.80. Mr. Johnson served as county tax receiver from 1929 to 1935, until he was elected to the board of commissioners. He died in 1938.

Romantic Judge Upholds Fine on 'Necking' Driver

PITTSBURGH, May 8.—(AP)—Quoting poetic lines on love, Judge G. Malcolm McDonald regretfully upheld a $10 fine imposed on a young man for driving with one arm around his best girl.

Regretfully, because the judge, as he himself said, "committed the same offense many years ago."

But, the judge remarked, his own "offense" did not occur on a main highway, and he was not caught.

35-Beers-a-Day Man Freed of Drunk Driving

TRUMBULL, Conn., May 8.—(AP)—Alex F. Varanelli, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, admitted he drank 35 glasses of beer before his arrest, but insisted he consumed that amount daily and was not intoxicated. Judge Joseph L. Schwimmer acquitted him.

Swamp Killer Brought to End With Dynamite

pond, it meanders in a flow that is hardly more than seepage.

It twists and squirms through a tangled snarl of black gum and red cypress that lift their proud heads high above the rich, flat fields around, their base a teeming jungle of twisted vines, old logs, rotting stumps and gumbo muck.

It is the haunt of the white heron, the mink, the moccasin, the canebrake rabbit and the moss-backed turtle; it is the lair of the perch, the catfish, the bream and the red-finned pike.

Breeding Place.

It is also the breeding place of Anopheles Quadrimaculatus, the malaria mosquito, hereinafter referred to in the language of the public health officer simply as "quad."

Quad is the killer that the public health people, the WPA, the county officials, and the people of the Blue Springs have finally united to destroy.

For many generations the folk who lived along Stanley creek did not know that quad was their murderer. All they knew was that out of the steaming depths of the swamp, when summer rolled around, death came.

They thought it was the malaria, the damp and humid air. They tried to escape it by building their houses to the west. They thought the morning sun sucked the fever out of the swamp and soaked it into their bones. But that didn't work, and every summer from this house and that, somebody came down with the burning fever, the shaking hands and the skin like yellow parchment that finally ended with the black water oozing from the lips and the life oozing from the body with it.

Cut Deeper Wells.

Then they figured it was the water from the swamp, seeping into their shallow wells that gushed from the clean limestone close below the ground. So they cut deeper wells, that went down to the sweet water deep in the earth 200 feet or more, and sank iron pipes down to keep the swamp water out.

But they kept on dying. And still they didn't associate the death that visited them with the little wiggle-tail larvae that skittered under the dead leaves of the swamp to escape the hungry minnow or the swift-striking pike.

Then they turned to cure-alls—tonics, patent medicines. That made them feel a little better. They dosed with quinine till food tasted bitter on the tongue, and to smoke was nearly sickening. And still they died.

By this time, of course, they knew that their houses on the west and their deep wells weren't helping. They had learned from their doctors that no strange miasma was putting the fever in their bones. They knew by then that the tiny droning mosquitoes, singing around their beds at night, biting them in the humid days, pestering them in the early morning, were the carriers of the fever.

Nearly Hopeless.

That made the job nearly hopeless. It was a big swamp. Ponds sprawled out in every direction from the slow twisting body of the stream. They'd never be able to clean it up, alone.

But something had to be done; and finally they did it. Hardly a person, white or black, in the Blue Springs district where Stanley creek lies, failed to sign his name or make his mark on the petition that, early in the spring of 1937, went to Senator Russell and Senator George, and to Congressman Stephen Pace at Washington.

It is a remarkable document in some ways, but it puts its idea across and as the plea of a troubled people it needs reprinting here:

"Gentlemen,

"We, the undersigned citizens of Blue Spring district and Pulaski county, Georgia, here by hand you the following petition:

"There is a creek rising from a spring in this district that is about three miles long, and from 100 to 300 yards wide. This creek is nothing but a marsh of mud covered with trees, this stream is the most deadly place that there is in this part of Georgia. No one can live in from one to three miles with out being in dread of malaria and malarial fever. No white people can live there at all. There was a young white boy that bought him a farm on this creek in the fall of 35 build him a nice home and did not live to finish gathering his 1936 crop. There is living there now four white boys that is trying to sell their crop and leave on the account of their health they are sick all the time.

"This stream must effect at least 200 families on both sides. Also it is in the best farming section of Pulaski county. We are wondering if there is not some way that we can get this stream ditched. We are asking you to use your influence to have this included in a project in the near future. Also we would like to know just what steps we could take to speed up this work.

"You cannot understand the deplorable condition that there is in this section unless you lived here and see some good white man who lives close to this creek die with malarial fever. There is not a year but there is not from one to three deaths of both white and colored people. We will thank you to look into this at once and try to help us from this dreadful malady before another summer. The name of the creek is Stanley."

It bore 125 signatures. It started wheels turning that haven't stopped yet, and won't stop till Stanley creek is no longer a lived hole. It came from the congressmen back to the Public Health Department at Atlanta. It went from the Public Health Department to the WPA, with that organization's O. K., back to the health department.

It brought no news to them. Records on their books for years have shown Pulaski county to be a malarial county, and the Blue Springs district its worst pesthole. They knew from their records that from 1928 to 1937, 69 people per 100,000 died in Pulaski county, while only 13.9 per 100,000 died in the state as a whole. They knew that in 1939, Pulaski county had the highest malaria death rate in the state—51.7 as against a low state average of 3.1 per 100,000.

But they had to check. John Henderson, of Atlanta, malaria control engineer, came down to look around. Long before he got to Stanley swamp he knew he was in the right place. Every burn along the road bore the gaudy signs of the "chill killers," the patent medicines. Every cross-roads store had them lined along the shelves. He stopped at stores and houses and talked to folks.

"Yes, sir," they told him. "This is the place." One of the men at one time or another had had malaria. From every family, in the past generation, nearly, some one had died.

He went back to Atlanta to report that the 125 people who had signed the petition had not exaggerated.

The boys from the Albany regional health office came over and waded hip deep through the tangled muck, figuring the costs to county and to WPA. They made their report.

The county, through J. F. Lee, commissioner, said go ahead.

Rock Howard, health engineer, and R. A. Bellamy, biologist from the Macon office, on orders from Dr. Justin Andrews, chief of the state malaria control, followed. Bellamy scooped up canful of the wiggling quad larvae for laboratory tests and Howard ran the right-of-way line and set stakes for the excavation that was to turn Stanley Creek from a wandering slough to a straight, swift-running stream.

From the Ocmulgee, a mile to the highway bridge the drag-line huffed and puffed and snorted, clearing the channel, till the morass grew too deep and the drag line had to stop.

Then the dynamiters took over. Fred Messick, ace powder man, came in with a crew of husky Negroes, each powerful enough to carry a 50-pound case of dynamite through hip-deep muck and tangled vines. They began laying the 18,000 sticks of high explosive that were to blast the channel clear all the way to the dam.

Skipping from tussock of quivering grass to up-thrust cypress knee, light as the dragon flies that swarmed around him, the little man set his sticks a foot apart, in 500-foot sections the length of the channel line.

He started last Friday. Twice a day, since, barefooted plowboys in the fields surrounding have heard a deep dull boom and have turned to see the black slime of Stanley creek bottom rising in a fountain above the tops of the trees.

For all except a little way the channel now flows straight as an arrow. The wandering curves of the sullen stream are gone. Out in the mud of the swamp, drying now as a hot south Georgia sun sifts down, Anopheles Quadrimaculatus is dying by the billions.

They had a big show yesterday, as they got along toward the end of the blasting. Folks came from miles around for the demonstration as in one great explosion another section of the swamp went up.

The folks from here were mighty proud. They laughed and hollered when it blew, and scurried into the mud that had hung over the swamp to look for the pike and jack-fish, perch and bream and turtles that might have been stunned by the blast.

There was another group that didn't holler and run into the swamp, but which was just as proud. E. C. Egbert, division health engineer from Albany, was one of them. L. M. Clarkson, head of Georgia's Public Health engineering, was another. Others were Brewster Snow and John Black and Dr. L. M. Petrie, the boys from the Albany health service region, who got the thing started.

The WPA folks, D. G. Nichols, Adrian Newcomer, and B. B. Black, without whom the county never could have swung the project at all, felt mighty good when they saw it.

Everybody was happy except old Anopheles Quad. His days as a murderer are over.

City Expects To Avoid Loan To Meet Bills

Increased Tax Collections Enable Officials To Pay Debts.

Prospect that Atlanta will pass the second consecutive year without being forced to borrow money from banks to meet pay rolls and current obligations was seen yesterday by B. Graham West, city comptroller, when it was announced that tax collections for the first eight days of May exceeded those of the same period in 1938 by more than $200,000.

Necessity for making a temporary loan to meet the May 5 pay roll amounting to about $425,000 was averted when collections for the first eight days were in excess of $500,000. The collections were boosted $105,000 when the Southern Bell, Telephone & Telegraph Company paid its 1940 taxes during the period to assist the city in paying employees without making a loan. Collections for the first 10 days of May, 1939 were about $300,000.

West said payments for the current year "are encouraging and an indication that the city probably will be able to avoid making bank loans for the second consecutive year."

In 1938, the municipality borrowed only $360,000 during the entire year, and that for a period of 10 days only.

West joined city tax assessors in warning Atlantans that a two per cent discount for early payment of taxes will not be allowed after May 15, and urged all those who can do so, to pay their 1940 obligations promptly to take full advantage of the offer.

Dynamite Blitzkrieg Smashes Swamp Killers' Castle

BAR-O-O-O-M!

Thar she blows! A whale of a blast. A thousand sticks of dynamite explode, and the black slime of Pulaski county's Stanley Swamp leaps skyward as a straight channel is smashed through one of Georgia's fast-disappearing strongholds of malaria. See how the blasted muck soars 125 feet upward, higher even than the 70-foot forest giants. The assault on Stanley Swamp was a project of the Georgia Public Health Service and the WPA.

(Story on Page 1)

FOREST PRIMEVAL Powderman Kelly Dixon squints down the line after WPA laborers have stuffed sticks of explosive deep into the death-breeding muck of Stanley Swamp. That coming blast will knock the kinks—and mosquitoes—from the stream.

AFTERMATH

Well, it's over. The dynamite blast that gouged a straight, health-bringing channel through Stanley Swamp, that is. Here is the new waterway before draining ponds have had time to seep in and fill it with water too swift to harbor deadly mosquitoes.

A SHAVE

for the stubby face of the swamp. A workman with heavy digging tools is clearing out stubborn logs loosened but not lifted by the dynamite. Stumps along the right-of-way show where axmen have felled trees that were snaked out of the swamp by machine.

GENESIS of the slow flow that formed the deep and deadly morass of Stanley Swamp was Jelks Pond, impounded a hundred years ago for a gin and grist mill. It will be lowered and pumps installed to wash its banks clean of debris where death-dealing mosquitoes might hide.

CHAIN CHARGES

A veteran powder boss is Fred Messick, attaching the wire that will set off the blast. The job was done by "propagation blasting," in which one stick, exploding, sets off the next down the murderous 500-foot-long trail of dynamite.

VANQUISHED

is the swamp and with it its myriad legions of mosquitoes. Here we see Stanley Creek where it flows into the Ocmulgee. Its sides are dry. Shown are Rock Howard (left), public health engineer, and Pulaski County Commissioner J. R. Lee.

Grocers Rename McLaurin Chief

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 8.—(P)—J. H. McLaurin, of Washington and Jacksonville, was re-elected president of the United States Wholesale Grocers' Association for his 31st term at today's session of the organization's annual convention in progress here.

R. H. Rowe was re-elected executive vice president and with him 11 other vice presidents were chosen. T. T. Blakely, of Griffin, Ga., is among the vice presidents.

Mrs. Julia B. DeLand, who has been an officer for 15 years, was re-elected treasurer. She also is the secretary, an office filled by appointment.

Huey Long's Name Link To Slot Machine Racket

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—(P)—Testimony given before a New York grand jury which linked the name of the late Senator Huey P. Long with putting slot machines here several years ago was introduced today over defense objection in the income tax trial of Frank Costello and five others.

The grand jury transcript showed Costello testified he had agreed with Long to put slot machines back in New Orleans and that subsequently the "mayor of New Orleans" obtained passage of an ordinance to implement the agreement.

DeKalb County Names Nichols New Coroner

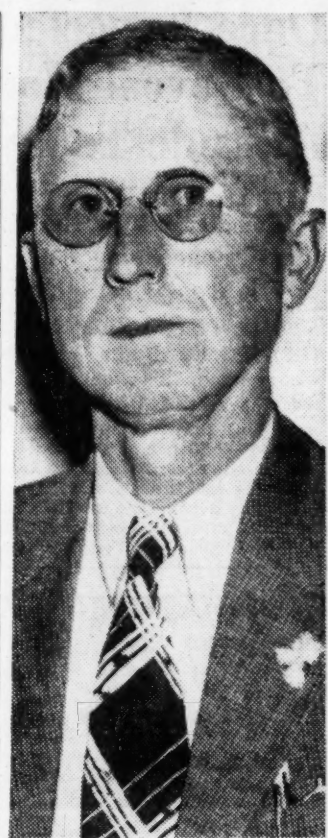

Will Fill Unexpired Term of Emsy Thomas.

Hoyle Nichols, retired Decatur electrical engineer, yesterday was appointed coroner of DeKalb county to fill the vacancy created by the death last Friday of Emsy Thomas.

Nichols, who is 46 years old and lives at 257 Madison avenue, was sworn in at 9 o'clock by Ordinary Vess S. Morgan in the presence of other DeKalb county officials. His appointment will expire December 31.

A native of Bibb county, Coroner Nichols has been a resident of DeKalb county for the past 18 years. He is an active member of the Civitan Club of Decatur; the Elks, the Harold Byrd post of the American Legion and a deacon in the Oakhurst Presbyterian church.

He was injured shortly after the World War in an elevator crash which disabled his left leg. He was instructed in his new duties yesterday morning by Sheriff Jake Hall and Police Chief J. T. Dailey.

New Panel Summoned For Bibb Murder Trial

MACON, Ga., May 8.—(P)—Attorneys selected six jurors, exhausted a panel of 65, and made it necessary for Judge A. M. Anderson to summon 80 more today in an attempt to strike a jury to try Sheriff Sam Kitchens, veteran Twigg county officer, for the slaying here last January of Forrest Wimberly, Twigg constable.

Most of those on the jury panel were disqualified for prejudice against capital punishment.

Sheriff Kitchens is charged with shooting Wimberly to death as he rode down Mulberry street in a car driven by the constable. The sheriff also faces an assault with intent to murder charge for the shooting of his deputy, Clyde Bridges, at the same time.

Mother's Day

You will be amazed at the lovely gifts Atlanta merchants are offering for Mother's Day giving! Whether you want to surprise her with a gift of comfort, luxury, utility or sentimentality, you will find the best values in many a day at your favorite stores and concerns. Remember, you only have 3 days in which to select your Mother's Day gift!

Be gentle to thy mother; long she bore Thine infant fretfulness and silly youth; Nor rudely scorn the faithful voice that o'er Thy cradle pray'd, and taught thy lisping truth. Yes, she is old; yet on thine adult brow She looks, and claims thee as her child e'en now.

Pretty Russian Voices Puzzles Found in U. S.

Likes America Very Much, But Can't Understand Unemployment.

By WILLIAM L. WHITE, Special Correspondent.

S. S. SATURNIA (By Mail)—"Oh, I liked America very much," said the pretty Russian girl, and from the way her face lighted up I am sure she meant it. She was on her way back to Moscow after a year spent working for her government at the world's fair.

"Everything?" "The Americans are very nice people. They were very kind to me." Now people, whether they are nice or not, are always polite to any girl as pretty and modest as this one was, but this was not the time to bring that up.

Urges Frankness. "But I told you what I didn't like about your pavilion at the world's fair. Now you be frank and tell me what you did not like about America. There must have been some things."

The Russian girl nodded. "Yes," she said. "I couldn't understand why, in a country so rich, there were so many unemployed." And then she looked at me to be sure she hadn't said something rude. "I can't understand that, either."

"But I really liked America very much."

"But it must have been hard, living there after the war broke out—wasn't it?"

Face Clouds.

Her face clouded, and after a minute she answered slowly in a lower tone. "Yes, it was."

"Was the feeling pretty strong?"

"It was the American papers. Every day they would say a new Russian division was destroyed by the Finns—every day!"

"I don't know what the other boys were saying. I only know what I sent. I said three Russian divisions were destroyed because three actually were. And when the Moscow radio said Helsinki had never been bombed, I said over the radio that this was a lie, and that I could show them places bombs had exploded a few hundred yards from where I was speaking."

Was For Finns.

"But I never said the Russians were cowards and had to be herded into action. Your boys were really brave. But of course I was for the Finns. We Americans liked your foreign policy in the days when you were against the Nazis and for the Czechs and the little nations. We don't like it now that you've changed it and are attacking the little nations."

"But the Finns attacked us," insisted the very pretty Russian girl. And I didn't say anything at all. I just looked at her and grinned.

"But they did! They really did. All along the border."

"Any nation which wants a war can always find border incidents."

"But they did attack us!"

"And you really believe the Finns could possibly be that silly?"

"Of course I do. They did attack us!"

And I could see that this was another subject which would lead to nothing.

THIEF VISITS BRITAIN.

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, yesterday reported to police, through his secretary, that his 1940 city directory had been stolen. The police report stated "the victim's name was stamped all through same."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

U. S. Bomb Sight Best, Experts Say

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—Military authorities expressed the conviction tonight that secret bomb sights used by United States army and navy planes were still the world's best in the face of Berlin reports that Nazi fliers had used in Norway a new device of comparable accuracy.

The German bomb sight was understood to be basically the same as Japanese fliers have used in China with results that have failed to impress American military airmen.

Allies Offer Aid To Yugoslavia And Hungary

Sofia and Budapest Shy From Anti-Hitler Bloc, Report.

BUDAPEST, May 9.—(Thurs.)—(AP)—Authoritative diplomatic quarters said today that Britain and France, pushing a campaign to create a solid southeastern bloc to stand against any German or Italian aggression in the Balkans, have offered a guarantee of Yugoslavia's territorial integrity and independence.

This report followed reports that the support of the British army and air force has been offered Hungary, should she choose to resist any move of Adolf Hitler to move his troops through that country.

The British also have been reported offering assistance to Bulgaria in order to draw her into a Balkan defensive alliance.

Both Bulgaria and Hungary, however, are reported to have shied away from the offers.

The proffer of military aid was reported conveyed to Count Teleky, Hungarian premier, by the British minister, Owen St. Clair O'Malley, when the envoy asked Teleky what he would do if Germany attempted to march through Hungary.

The diplomatic sources said Count Teleky refused a direct answer, saying the government's attitude would depend on the circumstances.

Nazis Ready On All Fronts, Berlin Asserts

'We Won't Be Caught Unawares Anywhere,' Spokesman Says.

By LOUIS F. LOCHNER. BERLIN, May 8.—(AP)—Official German quarters, in the face of general European anxiety, tonight assured all inquirers that Germany is prepared to strike decisively wherever and whenever her enemies aim a blow.

"We reveal no secret," authorized sources said, "when we repeat that Germany is prepared on all fronts."

Asked whether this meant the Netherlands frontier also, they replied: "Obviously."

"Of course," they recently has intimated England is determined to widen the area of combat," these sources added. "But he has not said where except that he broadly hinted at the Mediterranean."

"That may be a blind, however, for operations elsewhere. Spain, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland—all have been mentioned by the world's press. We won't be caught unawares anywhere."

Hand in hand with these verbal assurances went wholesale summonses to the colors.

$200,000,000 Held By Dutch in U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(AP)—The United States' role as the world's greatest safety deposit box was emphasized anew today when it was estimated that the Netherlands have at least $200,000,000 of wealth in this country—and perhaps a much larger sum.

All told, foreign governments and citizens have stored more than $11,000,000,000 in the United States for protection from war and other dangers abroad.

Rumania Grasps Defense Supplies

BUCHAREST, May 8.—(AP)—The cabinet economic council announced tonight that the Rumanian government would take over control of all stocks of wood, coal, petroleum products, cotton, fodder, grain and foodstuffs in the interest of national defense.

Officials said this would be a first step toward economic mobilization. Decrees covering the action will be published tomorrow.

Six Luxury Ships In Sydney Harbor

HONOLULU, May 8.—(AP)—Passengers on the steamship Mariposa reported today that the British steamship Mauretania, Queen Mary, Aquitania, Empress of Canada, Empress of Britain and Empress of Asia were in the harbor at Sydney, Australia, when the Mariposa sailed April 26.

The Mauretania and Queen Mary left New York late in March. It was reported they would go to Australia for transport service.

U. S. Fleet Move May Be Unwise, Japanese Says

Consul Declares His Country Has Tried To Avoid Suspicion.

HONOLULU, May 8.—(AP)—Kiichi Gunji, Japanese consul general, said today if extension of the United States fleet's stay in Hawaiian waters was intended to discourage Japan's program in the Far East, or to force Japan into an unfavorable trade treaty with America, then the navy's move was "unwise."

"The Japanese people possess the unique characteristic of having a strong reaction," he continued. "If we are treated and looked upon kindly, we will reciprocate. But if not, then we tend to look upon them unfavorably."

"So it is with the decision of the navy to remain in Hawaiian waters. If this is meant to solve the differences between the United States and Japan by a display of arms . . . I think the move is unwise. Personally, I am not concerned with the fleet staying longer, but some Japanese might look upon the move suspiciously. What would Americans think if the Japanese navy maneuvered near Hawaiian waters, but outside territorial boundaries, or on the high seas near Alaska?"

"The Japanese navy does not intend to make such maneuvers because we want to avoid animosities."

"But, of course, it is the business of the American navy if they want to stay here longer or hold maneuvers anywhere in neutral waters."

Duce Expected To Reveal War Attitude Today

Will Tell Italy Whether It's Peace or War, Sources Predict.

ROME, Thursday, May 9.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini was reported authoritatively to be ready to break today his long silence on Italy's role in a war-torn Europe—a silence not shared by the Italian press, which has been attacking the Allies freely.

Usually dependable quarters expect Mussolini to speak about noon from the balcony of Venice palace, and perhaps tell the Italian people what he expects of them at this critical moment. Today was the fourth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist empire.

The press achieved a new crescendo of invective against Britain and France. Obviously inspired in its unanimity, it clamored against the Allies with the accusation that they were planning an early coup in the Mediterranean, Balkans or near east.

Leading the outburst of denunciation was a warning by the authoritative editor, Virginio Gayda, against any attempt to blockade the Mediterranean. Such an effort to bottle up Italy might plunge the Allies into a new phase of a "hard, uncertain, bloody war," he said.

Mussolini's own newspaper, Popolo D'Italia, of Milan, slammed the door against any French overtures toward Italy. It said the advances came too late, and then only because of the Allied setback in Scandinavia.

"Today," the newspaper said, "the misunderstanding has grown into an abyss. France has come too late."

Two Cabinet Meetings Are Called by Reynaud

PARIS, May 8.—(AP)—Premier Reynaud tonight called two cabinet meetings for tomorrow—one in his office and another with President Lebrun at the Elysee palace—as the government kept a careful watch on developments in Holland.

Although a war ministry spokesman asserted that renewed rumors of a possible German invasion of Holland were only a Nazi propaganda move to keep neutral nations stirred up, other French sources expressed belief that something was afoot serious enough to cause the Netherlands to take unusual precautions.

CREDIT MEN TO MEET.

GRiffin, Ga., May 8.—The annual meeting of the Griffin Credit Exchange, Inc., will be held next Monday night in St. George's parish house. A feature of the program will be presentation of a sound slide film, "Credit—the Life of Business." The picture will be shown by L. S. Gilbert, manager of the Credit Service Exchange, of Atlanta.

SAYS

Eugenia Edmondson Chosen To Cut Huge Birthday Cake

• • • THE SELECTION of adorable little Eugenia Edmondson, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Edmondson Jr., to cut the birthday cake at the annual children's party Saturday at Emory University hospital, bears sentimental interest. Little Eugenia, you know, is the great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. Lucy Elizabeth Candler, for whom the pavilion at the hospital was named, and the annual party honors all the babies born during the year at the hospital.

Eugenia, who is named for her aunt, Mrs. John Wilson, of San Juan, the former Eugenia Candler, will be forced to climb upon a stool to cut the huge 25-pound cake at the party, which will feature a "Wizard of Oz" theme. A large book of "Oz" will be arranged to form the background for an outdoor stage, and the children, dressed in characters from the "Land of Oz," will step from the pages of the book onto a stage to present a short play in pantomime. Judges will award prizes to the best costume worn by those present and those taking part, who are Betty June Kilpatrick, Mary Brockman, Thomasine Mueller, Bobby Hudgins and Joyce Carter.

The annual party will be given under the chairmanship of Jacqueline Howard, while Mrs. Augustus M. Roan, chairman of the Lucy Elizabeth committee, will be in charge of the entertainment.

Saturday's party will be the first time little Eugenia Edmondson has taken an "official" part in the program, and it will be a red-letter day in her young life. Sally hears that she has been learning to cut cake for the past week at the Wesley road home of her parents, Ray and Mary Candler Edmondson, in anticipation of the party. Like all the other babies born at Emory, Eugenia is a member of the "LEP" alumnae.

• • • A GLORIOUS TRIP is in store for Marguerite Jones, who leaves today for Vera Cruz, Mexico, where she will visit the locales described in the diary of her great-grandfather, the late John Wesley Fincher, of Dalton. Prior to sailing from New Orleans tomorrow, the belle will be the overnight guest of a former Georgian, Mrs. Ruth Shields Mason.

Important on her itinerary will be Orizaba, a mountain city located between Vera Cruz and Mexico City, where her great-grandfather was stationed prior to the war between the United States and Mexico. General Robert Scott and Robert E. Lee, who was not then a general, were also stationed at Orizaba at the time, and are pleasantly mentioned in the late soldier's diary.

After the war John Fincher took as his bride Rhoda Hallman, whose descendants, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hallman, now reside on West Peachtree street in Atlanta.

So pleasantly associated were they with the town of Orizaba that when their daughter was born, John and Rhoda Fincher named her Orizaba. The name became a family one, and Marguerite's only sister is named Orizaba for her grandmother.

Both Marguerite and her sister are graduates of Agnes Scott College, and are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Z. W. Jones. The treasured heirloom diary will doubtless come to life for the former when she visits the spots so vividly connected with the history of her family.

Mrs. Glenn Dudley Fetes Miss Ripley

Mrs. Glenn Dudley was hostess last evening at a Chinese dinner party honoring Miss Charlotte Ripley, whose marriage to Dick Tomlin will be a brilliant event of May 18. The affair took place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnwell, in Garden Hills.

The chandelier overhanging the dining table was veiled with a Chinese lantern, and pastel paper umbrellas adorned the place cards. A feature of the party was the reading of brief poems about the guests, which were written by the hostess. These were rolled and tied with white satin ribbon bows topped with miniature Chinese dolls. The menu featured Chinese dishes.

Invited guests were Misses Frances Sprattin, Mary Morris, Helen Clarke, Louise McKie, Dorothy Harris, Sue and Violet Bayliss, Sarah Lewis, Ann Austin, Rosalie Brooks, Rannie Geissler, Mesdames William Brooks, George Home Jr., of Evansville, Ill., Dexter Swanson, and the honor guest.

Mrs. E. B. Irwin was entertained at a luncheon earlier yesterday at her home on Myrtle street complementing the bride-elect.

Guests were seated at individual tables centered with silver bowls of pansies, and covers were placed for Miss Ripley, Misses Peggy Price, Sarah Lewis, Sue Bayliss, Hilda McDonald, Mesdames George Home Jr., Charles Rolleston, William Brooks, Dave Prince, George Ripley, S. S. Tomlin and the hostess.

Diocesan Group To Meet in Macon

The annual Macon-Columbus district meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese of Atlanta will be held Friday at 10:30 o'clock (eastern standard time) in Christ church, Macon. The speaker will be Miss Metta May Mitchell, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in Atlanta. Following the meeting, at which Mrs. Roy C. Smisson, vice president of the diocesan women's auxiliary, will preside, luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

Women from Milledgeville, Fort Valley, Columbus, LaGrange, West Point, Talbotton, Warm Springs, Griffin, Thomaston and Macon will attend this meeting.

Reports will be given by the diocesan officers and plans outlined for the coming general convention which will be held in Kansas City this fall.

Mrs. Wynn to Give Luncheon For Mrs. Geer's Visitors Today

Among interesting affairs featuring the social calendar for today is the luncheon at which Mrs. James Osgood Wynn will be hostess at the Piedmont Driving Club. The luncheon will honor a group of prominent visitors who compose a house party at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Geer in LaGrange, and who will motor to Atlanta today to attend the flower show being staged at the city auditorium by the Atlanta Flower Show Association.

Mrs. Wynn will decorate her luncheon table with an attractive arrangement of blossoms and leaves of the rare Magnolia Macrophylla, which she brought from her former home in Aberdeen, Miss., on her return from that city Tuesday. Small blown glass favors from Mexico will mark the places of the guests.

Covers will be placed for Mrs. Arch Lineberger, of Belmont,

N. C.; Mrs. John Pope, of Columbus, Miss.; Mrs. Leslie Rush, of Meridian, Miss.; Mrs. Hallie Watts, of Shuqualak, Miss.; Mrs. Geer and Mrs. Wynn.

For O. E. S. Officers.

Oakland City Chapter No. 260, Order of Eastern Star, entertained recently in honor of the worthy matrons, worthy patrons, associate matrons and associate patrons. Ed Almand, associate grand patron of the grand chapter of Georgia, was welcomed and presented to the east. Mrs. Abbie Ginn, conductress, was presented with a gold seal for standing the proficiency test, being the only member in Oakland City chapter to receive this honor.

Those taking part on the program were Thornton Wormick, Miss Rubie Bethea, Mrs. Kate Massey and Henry and Billie Steed and Miss Martha Teasley.

Prominent junior members who attended the annual convention of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs held in Gainesville this week were, left to right, Mrs. James I. Ramsey, Montezuma; Mrs. Tom Morgan, Waycross; Mrs. Amos Word, Montezuma; Miss Frances Collins, Dalton; Miss Martha Zachry, Waycross; Miss Gertrude Hodges, Waycross; Mrs. R. C. Freyer Jr., Manchester, state co-chairman of juniors; Mrs. George Buchanan, Columbus; and Mrs. Hiram Whitehead, of Comer, state chairman of juniors.

Gholston Cup Is Awarded To 4th District Second Time

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., May 8.—The fourth district won the Mattie Belle Gholston cup for giving the largest district per capita gift for Tallulah Falls school. Mrs. J. A. Corey is fourth district chairman and this is the second successive year that the cup goes to the fourth district of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Manchester Woman's Club will hold the cup during the forthcoming year. Twelve new clubs were listed on the dollar-a-month honor roll for the school in 1939-40. The clubs were: Ochlocknee, Ashburn, Hapeville, Cochran Junior, Valdosta Wymodausis, Brunswick Woman's, Gainesville Fine Arts, Toccoa Junior, Comer, Comer Junior, Lavonia and Lavonia Junior. So far, 35 clubs are on this honor roll, with others to be heard from later.

Comer Woman's Club won the achievement gavel for the best-organized work for Tallulah, the gavel being the one used by Mrs. John K. Ottley, when she presided over her first meeting as president of Tallulah board of trustees. Former Tallulah students, Carmel Nixon and Dorothy Hills, served as pages during the Tallulah hour, presented at the second business session of the forty-fifth convention of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs being held here in the first Baptist church. Mrs. Albert M. Hill, the president, presided at the meeting.

As student aid chairman, Mrs. S. V. Sanford reported that during the 32 years of student aid operation more than 800 girls have been helped to complete their education and $140,000 has been loaned. Not one girl who applied has been refused, who met with student aid requirements.

"From time to time letters of appreciation are published on Georgia Federation's official page in The Atlanta Constitution. Every application for a loan, which met the Foundation requirements has been granted this year. About 91 loans have been made and $14,000 lent, which is almost twice the number and amount of previous years. Work of the Foundation grows as facilities for education grow in our state," concluded Mrs. Sanford.

Skit Presented.
Mrs. Hinton Blackshear, Student Aid Foundation for the fifth district, wrote a clever skit entitled "Student Aid Playlet," which was well presented by Mrs. K. D. Howington, Mrs. Howard Reele, Mrs. George Webb, Mrs. Jabe Bishop and Miss Martha Johnson, of Lithonia Woman's Club.

The playlet is available for reproduction in clubs. It is a splendid story about the use and benefits of student aid.

Skit Presented.
Mrs. Hinton Blackshear won the Mary Virginia Connally cup for the district making the largest number of contributions to Founder's Memorial Fund. She also won the student aid cup awarded the district doing the most effective work for the Foundation during the year. Mrs. Willis Ragan presented the cups to the efficient fifth district chairman, Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, chairman of Ella F. White endowment, gave the encouraging report that many clubs have placed their names on the founders' roll, and a hand-painted certificate is presented for this award. The endowment fund is used for the maintenance of Georgia Federation's necessary demands.

Unanimous vote was given the commendation and recommendation that Mrs. H. B. Ritchie be given high honor in General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. John K. Ottley gave $50 to the Golden Jubilee fund of General Federation of Women's Clubs, the amount to be added to the $50 she contributed to the fund through the fifth district.

Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, was elected president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and elected with her were Mrs. Jarrell Dunson, of LaGrange, first vice president; Mrs. Carl K. Nelson, of Dublin, second vice president; Mrs. H. I. Shingler, of Ashburn, secretary; Mrs. Phil Ringel, of Brunswick, treasurer; and Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, director for Georgia in General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Butler succeeds Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, whose brilliant regime has been filled with constructive and progressive projects in every department of work undertaken by clubwomen. During the past two years Mrs. Butler held the directorship for Georgia in General Federation of Women's Clubs, which means that she acted as liaison officer between the state organization and general federation.

Mrs. Butler's Record.
Mrs. Butler has been first vice president and treasurer of Georgia Federation, and president and vice president of the seventh district. She served as president of Dallas Woman's Club, and is citizenship chairman of that club, and served with great efficiency in every office. Diminutive and blond, Mrs. Butler is a woman of tireless energy and broad vision, and the best interests of the federation

A foursome of attractive young belles who were appointed pages for the convention by the president, Mrs. Albert Hill, of Greenville, and who served her during the sessions which close today, were, left to right, Miss Shirley Palmour, Miss Mary Nix Williams, both of Gainesville; Miss Phyllis Jenkins and Miss Barbara Jenkins, both of Athens.

Ellis-Davis Plans Announced Today

Miss Mary Ellis and her fiancé, Lester Davis, have chosen June 8 as the date for their marriage, the ceremony to take place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Mark church, Rev. Lester Rumble officiating.

The bride-elect's cousin, Carl Sandiford, will sing, and music will be played by Miss Maude Eberhart. Miss Ellis, who will be given in marriage by her father, has chosen her sister, Miss Augusta Ellis, as her maid of honor, her only attendant.

The groom-elect will be attended by his brother, Roy Davis, as best man by Harold Smith, of Austell, and John B. Ellis Jr., brother of the bride-elect.

Miss Ellis was entertained at dinner and a kitchen shower recently by a group of friends in business. Covers were placed for Misses Marjorie Garrett, Irene Cowan, Alvarene Howell, Piggy Chambers, Gladys Hendrix, Charlotte Patterson, Isabelle Herbig, Mary Hardy, Louis Fields, Charlotte Carpenter, Elizabeth Allen and Augusta Ellis.

Mrs. Tom Heys will entertain Miss Ellis at a bridge luncheon Saturday at 1 at the Colonial Terrace hotel. Guests will include Misses Augusta Ellis, Marjorie Garrett, Alvarene Howell, Mesdames Harold Hiscow, Jessie Avery, Tom Fulton.

Mrs. Jessie Avery will entertain for the bride-elect at a bridge tea May 25. Mrs. James Beasley and Miss Hazel Jacobs will compliment Miss Ellis, the date of the affair to be announced later.

Bible Class Meets.
Women's Bible Class of Capitol Avenue Baptist church met recently with Mrs. J. E. Mayo on Dodd avenue.

Mrs. T. F. West, social chairman, presented a contest, which was won by Mrs. B. M. Mason.

will progress under her intelligent and earnest leadership.

The new president belongs to and is an active member of the Presbyterian church. She is the sister of Mrs. J. E. Cochran, of Tifton; Mrs. C. W. Reid, of Roswell; Judge N. A. Morris, of Marietta; and M. P. Morris, of Rome.

Clubwomen endorsed the resolution recommending the program of the Herty Forest Institute established in Waycross, and to encourage voluntary participation by state clubs. The institute honors the memory of Charles H. Herty, by continuing his work of developing industries in the pine belt.

Mrs. Lamar Rucker, state chairman of club institutes, has been invited to speak on the club institute program of General Federation of Women's Clubs, which meets this month in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Wednesday's program closed with a concert in Brenau College auditorium by Brenau Choral Club, under direction of Madam Regina Vicarino, the Brenau orchestra, and Enrico Leide.

Thursday's session, held in the first Baptist church, will close the Gainesville convention, which is one of the most constructive and informative conclaves ever held by Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Miss Idalene Kimbrell to Wed Mr. Jackson June 6 at Church

Attracting cordial interest is the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Idalene Kimbrell and O. M. Dainty Feminine Frills Highlight Working Clothes

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 8.—One-piece dresses giving a two-piece blouse and skirt effect are popular this season. You'll see an example on Irene Dunne in the recently completed "My Favorite Wife." Made of casha wool, this one-piece outfit has a plain black skirt with black beige striped top blouse. To go with it is a small fur hat and fur muff of fox. An interesting lapel pin of gold is worn by Miss Dunne. It has a Pipes-of-Pan effect with musical notes set with diamonds. Nice—if you run to diamonds.

A gardening fashion. Ellen Drew (currently in the latest Jack Benny opus) does her spot of gardening in a bright red and white cotton pinafore outfit. White eyelet embroidered frills highlight the pinafore, which goes over a one-piece shorts costume of the same material. Ellen's sunbonnet is of the covered-wagon hat variety, which ties under the chin, a white frill and a draw-string in back to hold it securely.

Some gowns worn by Mary Astor in the Hal Roach production, "Turnabout." . . . A Grecian gold lame gown features accordion pleats, waist-band girle and self-scarf attached to shoulder by a ruby and diamond shoulder pin. . . . A black hooded velvet dinner gown has a white floral design. . . . A black and turquoise blue afternoon dress with a draped bust—the drape is extended to back hem-line. Waist and neckline are embroidered in gold thread.

Jewelry notes. . . . A large ring, made of silver with a jeweled clasp, acts as the zipper pull on a smart handbag owned by Gail Patrick. . . . A pair of clips do not necessarily have to be worn together as a pair. Carole Lombard has a pair of ruby and diamond "skyrackets," which she wears with a grey chalk-striped suit—one clipped to the band of her hat, one to fasten the scarf at her throat. . . . Marsha Hunt has a "tailored" bracelet—a narrow chain of rubies arranged in a pattern like the Greek key. Though the bracelet is a part of her personal wardrobe, she lent it for her role in "Irene" to go with a scarlet-trimmed tennis frock.

Fashion Commentator Gives A Few Tips to the Tall Girl

By Ida Jean Kain.

Most of the time the fashion experts are so busily engaged in steering the women who are less than five feet four into clothes that will make them look taller that never a thought is given to the tall woman. But this week she gets a break!

In a backstage chat with Ilka Chase, who supplies the running comment for those fascinating technicolor fashion films, does a radio program and appears on the Broadway stage, we pumped for ideas on dressing to make height an asset. Miss Chase herself is a whiff over five feet eight and conceded to be one of the best dressed women in mid-town Manhattan, where a woman is expected to be well dressed.

Though she herself wears those new long-jacketed suits with all the requisite dash, she is not committed to the strictly tailored style. What she insists is: "That the tall girl should stay away from those dripping, drooling things with little dribbles hanging down."

And she also believes firmly that the dress should make up its mind what it is going to be and should fit somewhere to define the figure.

The hair-do, Miss Chase points out, can add two or three inches to the height, and the woman who is tall enough already should favor the rather flat style of hair-dress. If she has a long neck, the hair should be worn long and soft. The most flattering hats are those which fit the head snugly and do not elongate the figure.

And there you have the rules of a fashion commentator for dressing to make height an asset.

But some of you will be more interested in Miss Chase's ability to hold down three jobs at the same time and keep looking as fresh as a first-year debutante. The secret seems to be, "rest when she was not working, the actress spent the entire time in the country and about the most strenuous thing she did was gardening! She thinks plenty of sleep is the world's best beauty treatment."

Her favorite exercise is horse-back riding, even though she professes to be afraid of horses. It's exhilarating, good for the figure, and fun. Next to riding she likes dancing and says she never feels better than when she goes dancing three nights a week. "We're never saying right along that dancing is good exercise!"

Hats are one of the most important pieces of a man's wardrobe, and woe be unto him who buys one without giving himself the once over and full length at that.

When you finally get your hat on, it will be a good time to start the discussion of hats. You could be coy about it and start a little game by saying:

"Well, darling, I'm not like you, you know. You are the type of man who puts your hat on by a process of sheer instinct and then you are ready just like that! Now, me; it takes me HOURS, to get ready, and you always outshine me even at that!"

One of the first things to tell him that hats are not just for tipping purposes or to leave with the check-girl at the club.

Hats are one of the most important pieces of a man's wardrobe, and woe be unto him who buys one without giving himself the once over and full length at that.

When you finally get your hat on, it will be a good time to start the discussion of hats. You could be coy about it and start a little game by saying:

"Well, darling, I'm not like you, you know. You are the type of man who puts your hat on by a process of sheer instinct and then you are ready just like that! Now, me; it takes me HOURS, to get ready, and you always outshine me even at that!"

But when working hard, there's not much choice as to exercise, and she depends on a two-mile daily walk and mild calisthenics to keep her figure perfect. She particularly likes "cat stretching." Stand with arms stretched overhead, ribcage pulled up and away from the hips, then rotate the trunk in wide circles while continuing the upward stretch.

Average Wife Will Accept Addict's Dual Nature

By Caroline Chatfield.

Trying to advise a woman what to do with a drinking husband is sort of like recommending a remedy for indigestion without knowing what brought it on. Presumably every case is different and after a woman has resorted to the obvious remedies without success she has to resort to a philosophy such as this: "Ephraim is joined to his idols, let him alone."

Only when a man wants to quit drinking is a cure possible. Loved ones may take him to a psychiatrist, lead him to a drink cure, lock him up in an institution and back to his old tricks he will come—unless he has the urge to be cured. So say the wives who have owned them, the friends who have nursed them, the doctors who have treated them, which ought to be evidence in plenty to prove the case.

And now to the philosophy of life which the alcoholic wife has need of. No use for her to expect normal happiness: the sort the wife of a sober husband has. The addict has a dual nature; he's a two-in-one package and he must be accepted on this basis. His wife can enjoy him when he's in condition to be enjoyed and she must be patient with him when he's down and out.

A man craving drink and a man succumbing to his craving should appeal to his wife's pity as a crippled child appeals to her pity. He's maimed. The consciousness that he's wounding her makes him unreasonable and irascible with her and when she gets this clearly in mind she can more easily endure what he puts her through.

No wonder she is tempted to be martyrish, to pity herself and assume the manner of persecuted innocence. But she fares better if she uses that emotional and physical energy in making a life for herself separate and apart from her life with her husband. First, she should maintain a dignified silence on the sore subject if she's to keep her social contacts smooth. Outsiders don't enjoy being invited to keep in the closet and see the skeleton.

Second, she should not let false friends, nor keep her from making new ones. If she does, she has nobody to fall back on when the poor, weak man falls down on her. Third, she should have a care for the children whose lives may be shadowed by their father's weakness. There's her biggest problem and her greatest compensation, too. The children are entitled to a happy homelife and they cannot have it with an alcoholic father unless their mother accepts his tipping as a disease and maintains one attitude toward him when he's sober and another when he's in his cups.

And so to these dozen or more wives whose letters lie on my desk—letters freighted with heartache and despair—I would say: the drinking husband is as unhappy as you, the more wretched he becomes the more he drinks. You can't make him quit drinking by lambasting him, nor by threatening him. With expert advice you may get at the cause of the alcoholism and by a miracle the man may get the urge to be cured. In any case, life goes on and there is no reason why the wife of the addict shouldn't get something out of life in spite of her sorrow and disappointment.

Many women do; that's the answer.

Prolonged Standing Is Great Strain on Dependent Veins

By Dr. William Brady.

Man's upright posture is a cause of high pressure in some veins—the pressure made by the weight of a column of blood. This has to do with varicose veins in the leg or elsewhere. Hemorrhoids (piles) are essentially varicose veins—swollen, enlarged, dilated veins—and so is the condition called varicocele.

The network of veins in the area where hemorrhoids occur drains directly into the great portal vein which collects blood from the entire gastro-intestinal tract to carry it to the liver. These veins are not equipped with valves—they do not need valves in the quadruped or horizontal position—so their walls are subject to the weight of a long column of blood. And owing to the direct communication with the portal system of veins, any congestion of the liver area is reflected in overfilling of the hemorrhoidal veins.

Formerly constipation was assumed to be a factor in hemorrhoids, through pressure upon and interference with return of blood through the veins from the hemorrhoidal plexus. Constipation, however, is now regarded rather as an effort of hemorrhoids or at any rate merely associated with the general state of ptosis, sagging, flabbiness, weakness, poor muscular tone or elasticity incident to upright posture and neglect of physical training.

Prolonged standing or sitting is a greater strain on the dependent veins than walking or playing or dancing or other moderate exercise. Slow walking is a greater strain on the walls of dependent veins than is brisk walking.

Although we are referring more particularly to hemorrhoids (piles) these observations apply as well to varicose or swollen veins in legs or thighs, to varicocele and to many cases of varix in the pelvis. This is not the place to give symptoms. Heaven knows, introspective individuals are aware of plenty of symptoms from the quack doctor and nostrum literature. Anyway the patient should tell the doctor the symptoms. That is a better plan.

Tending to counteract the ill effects of upright posture plus fatigue or loss of elasticity or "tone," and hence rather beneficial for anyone subject to any form of varix or varicose veins are the following.

Lying down with legs and hips raised above head and shoulders. Standing on head. Rolling somersaults. Belly breathing exercise. Knee-chest posture. Sims or left lateral semi-prone posture.

Actual or imaginary juggling of a ball with feet as you lie on your back.

Resting both feet or your desk or the mantle of your boss's desk or the landlady's mantle.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE.

There are men who think it is a silly habit to remove the hat when they enter an elevator with women. If they believe in the practice, however, it is just as necessary to take off your hat when only your wife, mother or sister is in the elevator with you as it is when it is full of women or your best girl friend.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

It will be very generally found that those who sneer habitually at human nature, and affect to despise it, are among its worst and least pleasant samples.—Dickens.

MY DAY: Red Cross Members Visit White House

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—Yesterday afternoon I visited the Florence Crittenden Home here. This is an institution which receives a grant from congress and also has a board of visitors which provides some extra help from private resources. The grounds and building are very pleasant, the surroundings cheerful and the care good, but they acknowledge that they cannot begin to meet the need which exists in the District of Columbia, and there is no provision whatsoever for colored girls, who certainly need help as much as the white girls.

I returned to the White House for a departmental reception for women executives. At this reception the ladies of the cabinet receive with me, and we had nearly 2,000 guests. I was very grateful for beautiful weather which made it very enjoyable for everyone. The newspapers warned us that today we would have bad weather and I have been dreading possible rain, but the sun shines and soft breezes blow. More people are to be on the White House lawn today than we have had since the Easter egg rolling.

Between two and three thousand members of the American Red Cross, attending their convention, came over from 2:30 to 3:30. I did not arrive to speak to them until 3, because a hospital was being dedicated at Laurel, Md., where the District of Columbia home for feeble-minded is located. They told me I could drive the distance in half an hour, but it took much longer. However, I was glad to be able to be there and say a word at the dedication and to see the new building which ought to add greatly to the service which can be rendered to the inmates of this institution. They have some 600 feeble-minded varying in age from 6 to 40 years.

I hope everyone last evening had as pleasant an evening as I had at the dinner party and musical which was held here. Miss Jean Christian, the daughter of our old friends, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Christian, of Elmira, N. Y., played the harp after dinner, and Mr. Todd Duncan, the Howard University Glee Club and Miss Caterina Jarboro all sang for us. It has been a long time since we have had any music which all of us enjoyed from beginning to end.

Now let me tell you of a poet who has just come to my attention. A great friend of mine sent me a volume entitled "Against the Sun," by Ada Jackson. There are two poems which seem to fit the thoughts which many of us have been struggling to express in these disturbing times. One is called "Two-Headed Penny" and the other "Pacifist 1939." Many other poems will appeal more, I am sure, for other reasons, but these two made me hold my breath. In some way they seem to say some of the things which pass through one's mind and pull one this way and that in this confusing world.

Now I must leave you to go down to greet 2,000 more guests on our lawn and tonight the midnight train will take me to New York city for a brief stay.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. How are Indian azaleas propagated?
A. By cuttings of immature wood under glass and by grafting. All forms of azaleas can be layered. The deciduous outdoor species are propagated by seed.
Q. Is it advisable to prepare orange juice the night before it is to be used?
A. Although orange juice may lose some freshness of flavor, it

Write a Note—Tell Him He Needs a Hat

By Yolande Gwin.

The next time you see One and how long it takes you to put it on, just keep on dressing and toss the following remark over your right shoulder:

"Well, darling, I'm not like you, you know. You are the type of man who puts your hat on by a process of sheer instinct and then you are ready just like that! Now, me; it takes me HOURS, to get ready, and you always outshine me even at that!"

One of the first things to tell him that hats are not just for tipping purposes or to leave with the check-girl at the club.

Hats are one of the most important pieces of a man's wardrobe, and woe be unto him who buys one without giving himself the once over and full length at that.

When you finally get your hat on, it will be a good time to start the discussion of hats. You could be coy about it and start a little game by saying:

"Well, darling, I'm not like you, you know. You are the type of man who puts your hat on by a process of sheer instinct and then you are ready just like that! Now, me; it takes me HOURS, to get ready, and you always outshine me even at that!"

Mrs. Elder Honors Miss O'Beirne at Tea.

An interesting affair of yesterday was the tea at which Mrs. M. H. Elder entertained at her home on Muscogee avenue complimenting Miss Mimi O'Beirne, whose marriage to Dr. Scott Tarplee will be a social event of June 22.

The dainty lace-covered tea table was centered with a crystal bowl containing an artistic arrangement of cornflowers in pastel shades. Flanking either side of the arrangement were crystal candelabra holding burning white tapers. Effective arrangements of calendulas were used throughout the home for decorations.

Invited for this affair were 25 close friends of the bride-elect.

Mrs. Oliver Named 'Typical Mother'

A 92-year-old Atlanta mother will sit in the place of honor Sunday at the Atlanta Pioneer Women's Society's annual Mother's Day celebration, to be held at 4 o'clock in Piedmont park.

Chosen for the second consecutive year to represent the typical mother, she is Mrs. Charles J. Oliver, who makes her home here with her daughter, Mrs. George L. Turner, 1526 Westwood avenue, southwest.

The ceremonies will be held in the space to the left of the Fourteenth street entrance to the park. There will be music by the Georgia State Girls' Military band, invocation and benediction by the Rev. Walt Holcomb, of Calvary Methodist church, a poem, "I Love Old Mothers," given by Miss Rose Hubner, and an address to be delivered by A. S. Perry, of Culbert.

A bouquet for Mrs. Oliver will be presented by Mrs. Emma Calhoun Connolly. Following the reading of the list of members of the Pioneer Society who have died since last Mother's Day by Mrs. Lola Clement, Mrs. Elizabeth Fleck will place a wreath of flowers on the monument in honor of them.

Also included on the program will be the song, "The Old Refrain," to be sung by Clifford Skipper. At the conclusion of the program taps will be sounded by Misses Frances and Florena Stewart.

said that $125,000 has been set up for this project which will include a grade separation where the road crosses Clairmont avenue.

Pave New Link.

The other Atlanta project calls for the completion of the new Atlanta-Monroe-Athens highway. This will provide paving for the new link recently cut through from Candler road, at the eastern extremity of Fair street to a point beyond Avondale, eliminating both Decatur and Avondale from the new Athens road.

Neel said that in addition Atlanta would get $90,000 for the grading of State Route 14 from the Coweta county line to a point two miles east of Fairburn.

The chief engineer pointed out that completion of the new Atlanta-Marietta highway, the widening and resurfacing of the Roosevelt highway and Roswell road as well as a start on the Clark Howell Memorial highway to Warm Springs via Fayetteville all are included in the WPA program recently made public.

Projects Listed.

The chief engineer listed other projects in these counties: Appling, $75,000; Atkinson, $85,000; Bleckley, $80,000; Brantley, $170,000; Brooks, $85,000; Bulloch, $100,000; Chattooga, $100,000; Clarke, $35,000; Clinch, $154,000; Coffee, $60,000; Cook-Berrien, $200,000; Coweta, $110,000; Coweta-Meriwether, $75,000; Dade, $315,000; DeKalb, $241,000; Emanuel, $125,000; Evans, $130,000; Fayette, $100,000; Fulton, $80,000; Glynn, $160,000; Glynn-McIntosh, $125,000; Gwinnett, $38,000; Habersham, $56,150; Habersham-Stephens, $67,750; Hancock, $100,000; Jackson, $37,500; Jefferson, $100,000; Johnson, $153,000; Jones, $100,000; Lincoln, $165,000; McIntosh, $175,000; Miller-Seminole, $150,000; Pierce, $175,000; Screven, $200,000; Stewart, $100,000; Sumter, $50,000; Thomas, $75,000; Tift, $130,000; Washington, $1,000; Webster, $45,000; Wilkinson, $150,000; Warren-Jefferson, $70,000.

Seeing the Gay Life at the Switzerland Clinic, Jane Is Furious With Freddie

By Robert E. Sherwood.

SYNOPSIS.
Jane Benson's dismal Yorkshire existence is suddenly ended when she becomes heir to eighteen million pounds—she loses her fiancé, young Dr. Freddie Jarvis, when he realizes that he would be unhappy leading the gay, glittering life that Jane wants. He breaks the engagement and Jane, accompanied by a fast parasitic set, goes off on a whirl through Europe. Julie and Mille, once distant cousins who are now "chaperones" her, each have entrants in the race for Jane's hand and money—for a cut. Meanwhile, the publicity gets Freddie a contract in a very social Swiss "clinic." Alone, Jane berates him—and loves him still. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.
"You see...?" she said proudly to Freddie's photograph, "they've been waiting for me! They're not miles away—sulk—just when I need someone most. Idiots! Then her voice was soft. "Oh, Freddie! Why aren't you here tonight? Why?"

She broke off, wheeled around. The stranger was in her room. "How dare you come in here?" She ran to the telephone. "I'll call for help!"

"You know perfectly well you don't need it," he said calmly. "What are you here for?" Jane demanded.

"To give you back the money." "Don't you need it any more?" "No. It's answered its purpose." "How? You haven't escaped?"

"No. I felt it more important to see you—tonight. And listen carefully this time. A thousand pounds is a lot of money for a girl like you. Oh, I know your type. You think all you have to do is plunk it down on No. 17 and you'll go back home with a hundred thousand."

"You know a lot about me, don't you?" "I know this much, that you're a very sweet person. First of all, you liked me for my sake—you did like me a little, didn't you? And then you wanted to help me when you thought I was in trouble. Now, listen—I came back because I feel that you need me as much as I need you."

"I don't need you at all!" "Oh, yes you do. He came to her, took her in his arms. "You're just as lonely as I am..."

"Jane! What does this mean?" She whirled. It was Pietro, with Guy. She flamed, and ordered them out.

"You needn't be afraid, Miss Benson," said Pietro, with heavy dignity. They beat a retreat.

He looked at her. "Jane Benson?" he said to himself. "You don't happen to be the Jane Benson?"

She was aggressive now. "Yes, I happen to be the Jane Benson." "The Glitter Girl?"

"Yes—the Glitter Girl!" "Little Miss Millions?" "Yes—'Little Miss Millions'!" Jane was furious.

He broke into uproarious laughter. "What is it?" she demanded. He roared, and she shook him violently. "What are you laughing at?"

"I'm—not—laughing—at you. I'm laughing at myself," he said, regaining his speech. "The great psychologist—the genius who took you for a little adventures giving her last thousand pounds to an unknown crook. And I find that you're the Miracle of the Age—the Glitter Girl!" He stepped back, speaking bitterly. "Well, I may as well reveal my own unfortunate identity. I am the Glitter Boy—the young man with the 15 Rolls-Royces, with the sensational series of broken engagements, each consisting 10,000 pounds more than the last!"

"What are you talking about?"

"Have you ever heard of Sir John Bright?"

"Everybody has. He's the richest man in England."

"I'm his son and heir. The worthless son of a worthy father. John Bright—the Crown Prince of the Kingdom of Soap."

"You have more money than I have—"

"Yes—I'm even worse off than you are."

"It's very easy for you to sneer at money—you've never known what poverty meant. But I have."

"My poor little Miss Jane Benson—now that you have everything in the world, is there anything in the world you want to buy?"

"Oh, don't preach," she said angrily. "I've had enough of that! In Yorkshire, in that great dreary tomb of a house, I felt that money was the only thing that could give me—give me a ride over the moon. Now I'm going to take it!"

"You can't ride alone over the moon," he said softly. "Can't we try it together?"

She was startled. "Together?" "Why not? I'm the only man who can love you for yourself—you're the only girl who could love me for what I am and not for what I have."

"But love doesn't go by logic," she said slowly. Her eyes wandered to the photograph of Freddie on the dressing table.

He watched her. "Who's that chap?"

"A man who refused to marry me—because he thought I had too much money." He looked at her intently. "You still love him," he said. "Does he love you?"

"I don't know, John..." Suddenly she was deliberate. "He's in Switzerland, and that's where I'm going—to settle it one way or the other!"

"For my sake, I hope it'll be the other."

Jane had a number of revealing moments when she came to Freddie's "clinic" in the Alps. The lovely ladies of the place were agog over Freddie and not at all reticent. She went to his chalet, and he was amazed and delighted to see her. Jane was breathless, but not long in coming to her point.

"Freddie," she said earnestly, "don't you think it's time somebody tidied up the mess in your life? And in mine?"

"No, Jane," he replied. "It's hopeless. You know you've changed an awful lot since you left Yorkshire. But I haven't. I'm just the same struggling doctor."

The temper raged. "Struggling doctor?" she screamed. "You're the divine Dr. Jarvis! All the ladies insist on having you, and go gaga every time you touch them!" She was furious now. "Oh, yes, the nurses have told me, and so have the so-called patients in the so-called dispensary! Talk about a Monte Carlo night club!"

"And whose fault is it that I'm

"Freddie," she asked, brightly, "didn't you once promise me a hundred-pound trip to Monte Carlo?"

"Yes, but it was different then, and anyway I'm not interested in Monte Carlo."

Carter Leads McFadden for Second Place

Andrews Forced Into Florida Run-Off; Steagall, Starnes Ahead.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 8.—(P)—Jerry W. Carter, member of the State Railroad Commission, who sought the Democratic senatorial nomination, in yesterday's primary with the active support of national and Florida Townsend leaders, took the runner-up place behind United States Senator Charles O. Andrews tonight as tabulations proceeded.

Carter, third in a list of six candidates all through the early count, passed Magazine Publisher Bernard MacFadden on the strength of votes from rural precincts in west Florida. The margin still was close and final tabulation may be needed to determine which one will oppose Andrews in the May 28 run-off election.

Returns from 1,163 of 1,429 precincts gave:

Andrews, 137,112; Carter, 60,125; Cox, 28,762; Cone, 48,848; Hazen, 3,648; MacFadden, 36,992.

Holland Leads.

For the state's governorship, it appeared that State Senator Spessard Holland, of Bartow, and Francis P. Whitehair, of Deland, would enter the second primary, with Holland the high man by several thousand votes.

Returns from 1,188 of 1,429 precincts gave:

Barbee, 28,252; Clancey, 1,520; Fraser, 30,843; Holland, 96,998; Maples, 2,225; Patsy, 66,860; Schoepf, 6,197; Van Roy, 2,230; Walker, 16,410; Warren, 57,542; Whitehair, 78,320.

R. A. (Lex) Green, of Starke, the state's only congressman opposed for renomination, held such a wide lead over his two opponents that it appeared he would be renominated in the first primary. In west Florida's third congressional district, where Representative Millard Caldwell was not seeking re-election, Robert Sikes was leading Parkhill Mays by a slight margin.

Meanwhile, Alabama returns gave safe margins to eight of the state's nine congressmen and indicated a runoff for the other.

Speaker Bankhead, Representatives George Grant, Sam Hobbs and John Sparkman were unopposed for their house seats, but Representatives Steagall, Joe Starnes and Pete Jarman were in close contests.

Run-Off Indicated.

A run-off June 4 between Jarman and W. D. (Billy) Patlow Jr., Tuscaloosa, was indicated by virtually complete returns from the sixth district. Steagall and Starnes, after close races on early returns, finally pulled away.

In Washington, third-term supporters regarded President Roosevelt's California sweep as corroborative evidence of what they have been saying for weeks—that the election was automatically his, if he will take it.

The election gave a slate of delegates pledged to Mr. Roosevelt's renomination a lead of nearly three to one over the combined ballots cast for three other tickets. One of these, pledged to Vice President Garner, lost by more than six to one.

Nearly complete unofficial returns showed normally Republican South Dakota maintained strong adherence to that party in Tuesday's election in such gubernatorial nomination contests were the only major issues.

Methodists Plan Zone Conferences

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

THOMSON, Ga., May 8.—A four-day series of zone conferences on evangelism, embracing the Augusta, Athens-Elberton, Atlanta, Decatur-Oxford, Griffin, LaGrange, Dalton, Marietta, and Rome districts of the Methodist Church, will open here next Tuesday. Ensuing one-day sessions will be held in Jefferson, May 15; Hapeville, May 16, and Cartersville, May 17.

Among prominent Methodists appearing on each of the four programs will be Dr. Willis M. Jones, Dr. Harry Denham, Dr. J. Q. Schisler and the Rev. W. S. Norton. In addition to these, local church leaders will appear on the programs at the different places. Delegations from each church in the several districts will attend.

Expert Deplores View on Teachers

Conflict between higher education and the general public were cited last night by James Creech, of New York, field representative of the American Association for Adult Education, as he addressed the Southeastern Conference on Adult Education Co-operation. "Although we believe in education, we sometimes talk about our teachers with distrust and ridicule," he explained. "When a professor enters public life, he is apt to be ridiculed as a professor or a brain trust."

James Myers, industrial secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, also spoke, and Miss Emily Woodward, director of the Georgia Public Forums, conducted a forum on "The New Community."

SCHOOL HEAD NAMED.

SPARTA, Ga., May 8.—(P)—The county board of education today elected C. M. Dykes, Luthersville educator, as superintendent of public schools to succeed B. M. Harrison, who died recently.

Street Paving U.S. Allowed Resumption in Rise of Hitler, Hapeville Seen Cox Declares

Mathis Says Work on $253,000 Project To Start in 10 Days.

Resumption of Hapeville's $253,000 street-paving project, which bogged down last February, amid charges of "extravagance," was indicated yesterday by City Engineer D. Q. Mathis disclosed a new agreement with the Works Progress Administration.

Work on four Hapeville streets will begin "within 10 days," Mathis said, and will mark the beginning of a new project which, eventually, will fulfill the terms of the original agreement calling for the paving of nine street-miles.

Mile and Half. Grading and asphalt surfaces will be laid on Oak drive, Fulton avenue, Pine avenue and Rosser street—a total of one and one-half miles, Mathis said.

Decision to resume the street program was reached at a lengthy council meeting Tuesday night which also passed an ordinance restricting the activity of the community's five taxicab companies.

The new ordinance, recommended by Councilman R. L. Mullins, calls for registration of each taxicab and the carrying of $5,000 property damage and $5,000 to $10,000 personal liability insurance per cab.

Market Action Deferred. Council deferred action on a resolution submitted by Councilman Brown Tyler which asked Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts to locate the proposed new farmers' market in Hapeville. Under the resolution it is suggested that Hapeville refrain from collecting taxes on the market for a period of five years if it is located in the community.

Resumption of the street program follows two months of study by Engineer Mathis, who yesterday reached the new agreement with J. M. Holmes, assistant area engineer for WPA.

Knights Templar Advance Officers

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 8.—(P) Members of the Georgia Commandery of Knights Templar of Georgia, in their annual conclave here today, elected officers in a routine manner by advancing those in lower rank to the post just above them.

Included in the elections were J. P. Stevens, Augusta, right eminent grand commander; F. D. Wilkins, Forsyth, very eminent deputy grand commander; the Rev. H. Fields, Suwanee, Rome, grand generalissimo; Boling S. DuBose, Athens, grand captain general; Dr. W. F. Wells, Atlanta, grand senior warden; the Rev. J. C. Wilkinson, Athens, grand prelate.

Josiah T. Clark, Augusta, grand treasurer; Charles S. Wood, Savannah, grand recorder; William J. Penn, Macon, grand recorder; Joe A. Moore, Milledgeville, grand junior warden; D. L. Paulk, Fitzgerald, grand standard bearer; L. C. Petri, Columbus, grand sword-bearer.

The eminent grand warden to succeed Petri will be elected tomorrow. A number of entertainments for the knights and ladies were held during the afternoon, and others were planned for the evening.

The conclave will terminate tomorrow. Representatives of Knights Templar lodges all over the state are here for this convention, which is the 79th, in the history of the organization in Georgia.

U. S. Soldiers Rush Headlong Into Mock War

Streamlined Army Forces Open Maneuvers at Dawn Today.

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., May 8.—(P)—Western Louisiana and eastern Texas highways tonight were choked with the advancing motorized forces of two streamlined armies rushing headlong into simulated conflict which begins at dawn tomorrow.

Long after darkness, staff cars, trucks, tanks, armored cars and supply trains of the defending Blue army, numerically weak because of the unexpected initial air successes of the invading Red army in crippling communications, poured westward through the forests to check the invaders near the Sabine river.

The sixth division of 10,000 men under command of Brigadier General Clement A. Trott, and sixth cavalry under Colonel John Millikin were the first defending forces to reach the trouble zone tonight after forced marches from Fort Benning, Ga., which brought them more than 700 miles in four days.

Nurses of Georgia To Visit Conclave

Mrs. Arthur Dewey Greene, recently appointed executive secretary of the Fifth District Georgia State Nurses' Association, will attend the American Nurses' Association's biennial convention in Philadelphia, May 12-18.

Other Georgia registered nurses planning to attend are Durice Dickerson, of Atlanta, executive secretary, and Frieda Greife, of Savannah, president of the Georgia State Nurses' Association; Miss Jane Van De Vrede, fifth district president; Miss Carrie Spurgeon, educational supervisor of the Georgia Board of Examiners for Nurses, and Miss Lillian Nelson, president of the Atlanta League of Nursing Education.

Regents To Attend Farming Exhibits

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., May 8.—Governor Rivers, Chancellor S. V. Sanford, and the University System board of regents will participate in the activities of the annual Livestock and Equipment Day Friday at the College of Agriculture, University of Georgia.

Expected to draw close to 7,000 Georgia farmers, the day's program includes a barbecue, speeches, and all types of demonstrations. Dr. M. P. Jarnagin, head of the agricultural engineering department, will speak.

A regular meeting of the board of regents is scheduled for Friday also.

Sidney Camp Indorsed By District Committee

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GRIFFIN, Ga., May 8.—Members of the fourth district congressional committee yesterday passed resolutions praising Sidney Camp, congressman from this district, and indorsing him for the people of the district. The resolution was introduced by J. W. Culpepper, of Fayette county, and was passed unanimously.

Joe Gay, of Meriwether county, was elected chairman of the committee, Quincy Melton, of Griffin, vice chairman, and Charles Gwyn, of Zebulon, secretary.

Marietta Rites Are Set For W. Joseph Faulkner

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., May 8.—Rites will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the A. M. Dobbins Funeral Home here for W. Joseph Faulkner, 39, formerly of Cherokee county, who died in Marietta last night. Dr. B. C. Gamble will officiate, and burial will be in Kerth cemetery, near Macland.

Surviving Mr. Faulkner are his mother, Mrs. Lucy M. Faulkner, of Kennesaw; three sisters, Mrs. George S. Atkins, of Boca Raton, Fla.; Mrs. C. L. Allgood, of Scottsdale, and Mrs. L. C. Quarles, of Ball Ground; one brother, Keith J. Faulkner, of Kennesaw; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, of Canton.

Early Pennsylvania oil wells had such nicknames—Old Teaser, Old Misery and Big Bologner.
